LAKE CABLES ERIN PRESS IS SPLIT

Austen Lake, Boston Evening American Staff Writer, penning the smash-hit series, "Ireland Today," has returned from the Irish west coast to Dublin to report on the situation throughout the Emerald Isle resulting from the new constitutional pronouncement of freedom by President DeValera. His latest story on the situation follows:

By AUSTEN LAKE

(Special Cable to the Boston Evening American)

Dublin, May 5—Following the initial world-wide reading of the new Irish constitution by Eamon DeValera last Friday night, the one journal loyal to his administration in Dublin, the Irish Press, editorialized:

"Most Christian constitution in the world" and "no national charter has had more universal agreement."

AUSTEN LAKE

All other Dublin journals, composing the opposition press, restricted themselves to tepid jeering as "no startling surprises" and "millenium not yet in sight." Monday there was a diminishing comment, a tapering down to generalities, and Tuesday the constitution had been dismissed from the news and editorial columns, except for a short editorial crow by the Irish Press and a brief article telling of the torrent of cabled congratulations to the DeValera government from the United States. "Our Irish exiles," the press termed them.

The constitution had faded from the city's papers.

Strangely, the most vital topic of national interest had been crowded out by war news in Spain, "The truth about Hollywood" and the Dublin spring show. The Irish Times, the Evening Herald and the Evening Mail ignored the subject except for two letters from subscribers which were tucked next to the medical ads in the back of the papers.

The seventh instalment of Austen Lake's graphic series on "Ireland Today" will be found complete on Page 8.

Nor was there any viewing with alarm by the opposition members of the Dail who affected attitudes of apathy which one suspects were not wholly sincere. The answer to this seeming phenomenon is simple—the general elections are approaching and the opposition has agreed that a "pooh-pooh for you" attitude is least likely to publicize the administration's candidates.

There has then been a conspiracy to suppress any controversial uproar. There is, of course, another aspect, a fear of burned fingers, one that the constitution, or as it is popularly termed "Document No. 3," breathes with patriotism and contains a detailed definition of personal rights and thus carries an undeniable appeal to the Irish electorate.

The opposition papers are fearful of irritating subscribers and paying the penalty of party prejudice by failing circulation. Nor would it seem shrewd for the opposition deputies, who are soon to stand for re-election, to risk the

Insurance Failure Charged to DeCelles

LAYS MUTUAL FAILURE TO DE CELLES

State Insurance Commissioner Francis J. DeCelles was blamed today, before the special legislative investigating commission, for collapse of the Commonwealth Mutual Liability Insurance Company.

The blame was placed by Maurice T. Adams of New York, treasurer of the company, who declared the concern would still be in business today and on a solvent basis if it had not been for DeCelles.

"I consider the company was solvent at the time the receivers were appointed," Adams told the probers. "That was my opinion then and it is still my opinion. We had sufficient reserves.

HOW TROUBLE STARTED

"The trouble started when the insurance commissioner of Massachusetts had an article in the paper, in which he stated that the company was insolvent—and no company could stand up under that. From that moment on it was hopeless.

"I believe then, and I believe

Hindenburg 300 Miles Off Coast

New York, May 5 (AP)—American Airlines announced today receipt of a message through Rdiomarine Corp., stating the dirigible Hindenburg was 300 miles off St. John's Island, New Brunswick, at 9 a. m., eastern standard time.

The airship, en route from Germany, is scheduled to land at Lakehurst, N. J., tomorrow.

Order Autopsy on Quincy Man's Body

An autpsy was ordered today on the body of Henry Sandberg, 45, of Granite street, Quincy, who died today in Quincy City Hospital.

On April 28 Sandberg was found lying on a sidewalk on Hynes avenue, Quincy badly hurt. Police, investigating a possible attack on the man have questioned two persons.

Life Ebbs for Upton Baby

Child Weakening After Relapse

Whitinsville, May 5—"Little hope" for the recovery of two-year-old Winona Nelson was the sad verdict of doctors at Whitinsville Hospital here today.

Dr. John J. Bouvier said that in his opinion "only a few hours stand between her and death.

Baby Nelson, the Upton tot who was lost for four days and nights in the woods near her home, took a sudden turn for the worse yesterday afternoon, suffering two convulsions.

She was given a blood transfusion Monday night, rallied a little the next morning, but failed to respond satisfactorily. Kept in an oxygen tent since being brought to the hospital, doctors said she "doesn't seem to be fighting" and was being kept alive only by stimulants.

Although the traces of gangrene in the tiny feet and hands of the little girl have cleared up appreciably, her heart condition has become so weak Dr. Bouvier was pessimistic as to her chances of recovery.

Broderick Named To Transit Board

Appointment of John H. Broderick of Walnut avenue, Roxbury, a contractor to the Boston Transit Commission at a salary of $7500 was announced today by Joseph F. Mellyn, secretary to Mayor Mansfield.

Broderick will fill the position vacated on January 15, 1935 when Arthur V. Sullivan resigned to become assistant attorney general. Broderick's term expires April 30, 1939.

Fireman Injured Fighting $25 Fire

Work on a $25 fire in a small shed was the means of sending Fireman James Sullivan of Engine 37 to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital today witha serious foot injury.

Sullivan stepped on a board with a nail in it, and the point penetrated his foot. The fire was at 40 South Huntington avenue, Jamaica Plain.

LOVE NOTES OFFERED AT BALM TRIAL

He missed her "like the very devil" when they were apart, and if she told him a million times that she loved him, he'd still want to hear it again, Gregory H. Melonson, Swampscott aviator-explorer wrote to pretty Celia Hammond, according to testimony in Suffolk court today.

So passionate was his wooing that she couldn't help failing and that's why she is suing for $50,000 for breach of promise, Miss Hammond, a Back Bay nurse, testified.

Twenty-one letters and a postcard, all outpourings of Melanson's impassioned heart, were admitted as evidence at the trial.

Council Approves Cort, Whouley

The governor's council this afternoon approved the appointment by Governor Hurley of Joseph C. Cort and John M. Whouley of Cambridge as members of the state milk control board.

The two men take the places of Edward Shattuck and Frank T. Pedonti, resigned.

Cort, administrator of the board since its formation, had also been a member but resigned at the request of former Governor James M. Curley. Whouley was appointed by the governor as representing milk consumers.

Coronation Book O. K.'d for Canada

Ottawa, Ont., May 5 (Canadian Press)—The book, "Coronation Commentary," withdrawn in England after protest by the Duke of Windsor, will be admitted to Canada, Revenue Minister Ilsley announced today.

The book by Geoffrey Dennis deals with former King Edward's reign and circumstances of his abdication. The duke has filed suit against the publishers, who withdrew the book in England with an apology after Edward's protest.

$43,422 Tax Refund For Mrs. H. P. Dane

Mrs. Helen P. Dane of Brookline, wife of Ernest B. Dane, president of the Brookline Trust Company, was awarded $43,422 by the federal government today for over-assessments of income tax and interest for 1932 and 1933.

Dane, a multimillionaire, has served as fuel commissioner of Brookline and at one time was a member of the board of selectmen of that town.

Judge Overrules Denhardt Moves

New Castle, Ky., May 5 (AP)—Circuit Judge Marshall today overruled defense motions to discharge the jury trying Brigadier-General Henry H. Danhardt on an indictment charging murder of his sweetheart, Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor.

Defense counsel sought to have the jury dismissed on grounds the judge had failed to instruct members not to discuss the case outside of the jury room when they were locked up last night.

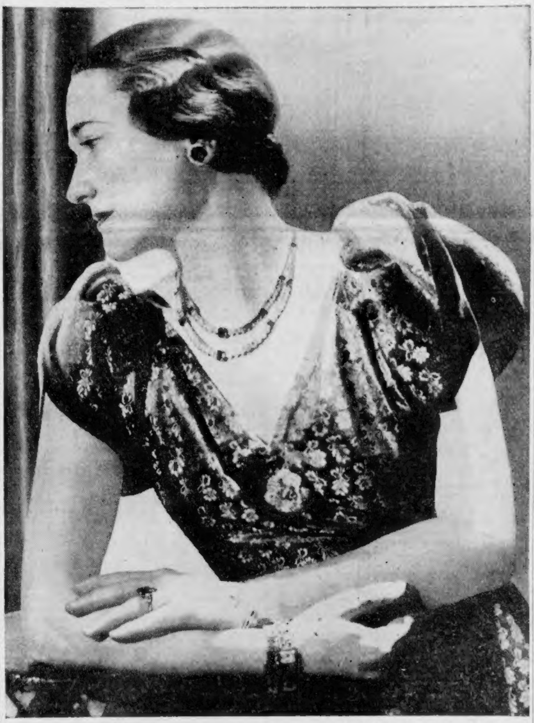
$500,000 Gift for Wally

London, May 5 (US)—The British royal family has made $500,000 available to the Duke of Windsor for his marriage settlement with Mrs. Wallis Simpson, the Daily Express reported today. If the duke should die before his wife, the income from this sum will go to support the duchess during her life. Altogether, it is believed, the duke's income will total $140,000 a year.



International News Photograph Service

Malden Boy Hurt in 3-Story Fall

Robert Allen, three, narrowly escaped death today although he plunged three stories from the window of his home at 92 Harvard street, Malden, to the concrete sidewalk.

At the Malden Hospital the child's name was placed on the danger list, suffering possible internal injuries and concussion.

The boy, youngest of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, was sitting on a chair in the kitchen beside a window, watching his mother washing clothes.

Leaning against the screen, he fell through, toppling approximately 45 feet.

The boy's father is an employe of the Malden Park department. He was at work at the time.

KING, EX-KING TIED IN PUBLICITY RACE

London, May 5 (INS)—The score in the involuntary contest for press prominence between Europe's present two greatest news figures—King George and his elder brother, the Duke of Windsor—stood at a tie today.

Edward and Mrs. Wallis Simpson overshadowed coronation reports in the morning papers, which featured dramatic accounts of their reunion.

The King and Queen Elizabeth won by a postage stamp in the afternoon sheets, however. The afternoons carried pictures of the new stamps, bearing profiles of the King and also reproduced pictures of the Queen and carried stories of the coronation rehearsal.

Pieces about Edward and Wallis are being published with much less prominence, in the long run, in England, than in America.

AT ODDS OVER HOME AFTER CEREMONY

Copyright, 1937, Universal Service

Monts, France, May 5—The Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Simpson, enraptured in a reunion ending five months of separation, have decided to make their wedding a gay event to be attended by members of their international circle of friends.

Soon after the world's most famous sweethearts greeted each other with fond embrace, they began talking of their forthcoming marriage.

The historic event is now tentatively set for May 26 or June 2, Universal Service learned. Both of these dates fall on a Wednesday.

Ring for Wally

Monts, France, May 5 (INS)—The Duke of Windsor brought a stunning array of gifts for Mrs. Wallis Simpson when he came to the chateau to join her, it was learned today.

Included among them was a huge double diamond and solitaire engagement ring.

Edward is determined to invite his international circle of friends and those of Mrs. Simpson to the ceremony in the Chateau de Cande here, as if in answer to the very attacks voiced by the Archbishop of Canterbury against the "alien, pleasure-seeking" social set surrounding Britain's former King.

Wally, Duke Argue Over Future Home

Monts, France, May 5 (AP)—Wallis Simpson and her gay duke walked arm in arm—behind a sharp-eyed escort of two—in the grounds of the ancient Chateau de Cande today.

Fifty yards in front of the strolling couple, an alert British detective paced along with Herman L. Rogers of New York, Mrs. Simpson's friend and spokesman.

Police at the various gates were doubled to keep the curious out, and Rogers said neither the Duke of Windsor nor his betrothed planned to leave the estate today.

ARGUE OVER NEW HOME

In fact, they were reported in mild argument about their choice of a home.

Tomorrow, it was stated, the famous couple may visit some neighboring chateaux.

The Chateau de Cande grounds were bathed in warm sun as Edward and Mrs. Simpson walked and, presumably, made their wedding plans.

Rogers, coming out to greet newspapermen before the stroll, refused for the first time to accept telephone calls. He also declined to discuss plans for the wedding—presumably put off until after mid-

WITNESS CHARGES DE CELLES 'KILLED' MUTUAL

OFFICER'S 'PEP TALK' CITED AT HEARING

now, that the company was absolutely solvent, could have continued to do business, could have paid its claims and could have had a profit of $50,000 for the first year."

By another witness today the investigating commission was told that DeCelles, late last November, a few weeks before the Commonwealth Mutual "died," visited the company's offices and gave the employes a "pep talk."

CITES DeCELLES' WORDS

According to Isaac B. Lotkin, secretary to the company's original board of directors, DeCelles told the employes the company was "only suffering from growing pains" and had a promising future if the employes would go on working.

Lotkin was testifying at the resumed hearing before the special legislative commission appointed to investigate workings of the company, whose life was only a single year up to the time it went into receivership last December.

Missing today at the hearing, however, was Attorney Charles F. Gadsby, representative of the Governor's office, who had sat in yesterday making notes on the testimony.

Lotkin told the committee that DeCelles once quizzed him on how Lotkin had obtained information regarding an alleged New York conference between DeCelles and Frank Cohen of New York, the company's financial backer, before the Commonwealth Mutual was organized.

QUESTIONED ABOUT COHEN

Yesterday, Lotkin had testified that Ruby Pittsburg revealed the meeting, but today, in telling of DeCelles' quizzing, Lotkin said:

"He asked me how did I find out that he was in New York with Frank Cohen. I said, 'Mr. Commissioner, if you'll forget your brass buttons and permit me to talk to you man to man . . . .' He said, 'Go ahead,' and then I said, 'If I were you, I wouldn't press me for an answer. Let a sleeping dog lie, because I don't want to disclose the source of my information, which I have treated confidential.' So we left it that way."

Asked how much money Attorney George S. Ryan, counsel for the company, had received, Lotkin named various sums which totalled approximately $10,000.

"RYAN THERE DAILY"

"The commissioner was with me every day in the week," Lotkin then said in a statement startling the probers. "That was Mr. Ryan. To me he was the commissioner."

Lotkin testified that DeCelles visited the Commonwealth Mutual offices, 40 Broad street, on three occasions.

One was when the declared "pep talk" was made; a second was when he went through the claim department and the third was when he allegedly asked Lotkin about the New York conference.

The witness said Attorney Nathan Fink and a Mr. Griffith were present at that conference. Asked who Fink was, Lotkin declared:

"I regarded him as a confidant of the commissioner's, because he had no official position in the company."

ASKED ABOUT FAILURE

Representative Philip Barnett of New Bedford, member of the commission and the original petitioner for the probe, asked Lotkin to what he attributed failure of the company.

"I'll try to put it mildly," said Lotkin. "I think it was the criminal disregard on the part of the contracting parties to live up to the original agreement."

Lotkin added that if Cohen had been directing the company with a free hand it would have remained in business, but Attorney Ryan "was a source of conflicting forces that existed."

"Instead of realizing that any business requires co-operation to exist," said the witness, "the very man on whom we relied for guidance was the man who was causing strife."

TRIED TO GET OUT

Answering questions by Representative John Coddaire of the committee, Lotkin declared he had tried to get out of Commonwealth Mutual as a director but could not get out, because of his connections as a member of the board of the Independent Taxicab Operators' Association (ITOA).

There were between 75 and 80 ITOA cabs insured with the company, the witness explained. He said:

"If I had gone back and told the men they were insured in a company that was—as the commissioner said—infested with gangsters, it would have caused a panic among them."

Adams, New York attorney who served as treasurer of the Commonwealth company from January 21, 1936, to November 30, denied that Frank Cohen was a gangster or had any gangster connections.

Questioned concerning the membership of the board of directors of the insurance company, Adams said he always looked upon them as dummies.

Adams testified he succeeded in blocking action by the directors for several months by refusing to attend meetings. His presence would have made a quorum.

"If I went to a meeting, I couldn't do anything, because they fere four to one against me," he said.

TELLS OF FINK CHECK

He said he met Commissioner DeCelles only once. It was at the insurance company's outing in the summer of 1936.

"I saw him again at the company banquet when he made a speecha nice one—patting us all on the back and saying things were lovely," Adams testified.

Questioned concerning a $1000 check paid by the Commonwealth Mutual to Attorney Nathan Fink, Adams said he signed the check after he had received an "O.K." from John McAuliffe, representative of Commissioner DeCelles, assigned by superior court to the Commonwealth office.

"What was the reason for giving Fink the check?" Representative Coddaire asked.

"At the suggestion of the commissioner,'' Adams testified. "Word was passed to me at the Parker House that we should pay Fink $1000. I was told the commissioner had agreed to it. I went back to the office. No money could be paid out unless it was okeyed by McAuliffe. I protested. He said, 'It's all right because I have word from the commissioner, I'll O. K. it.' He initialed the voucher and I signed the check."

COMMISSIONER'S FRIEND

Q—Did you inquire why the check was being paid? A—No, but I had my ideas.

Q—What were they? A—It was the time when we were fighting to keep the company alive and I understand that he (Fink was brought in as an intermediary. He was going to be the intermediary for the commissioner and our New York people. He was supposed to be a friend of the commissioner's and acting for him, but that's only hearsay. He was supposed to bring the whole situation to a proper conclusion.

Q—(By Senator Oppenheimer) To call the commissioner off? A—No. To bring things to a proper conclusion so we could go ahead with the business.

Q—Fink didn't accomplish what he was supposed to do? A—No, that's the natural inference to draw. We were buying something and we didn't get the goods. We were buying a solution that we didn't get.

Q—What was that solution? A—That we could go ahead and continue business.

Q—Why couldn't you continue business? A—At that time there was a petition for receivers.

Adams told the commission he didn't want to be misunderstood regarding his testimony concerning Commissioner DeCelles.

"I am not bringing him into this," he said. "I talked with the commissioner only once. I never talked with him concerning the monetary condition of the company."

Adams was further questioned by Representative Tarr

Q—Who brought Fink into the picture? A—I was informed that he represented the commissioner as an intermediary.

Q—Did the commissioner require an intermediary? A—Desperate conditions require desperate remedies.

Treasurer Adams testified that Commissioner DeCelles' statement in Boston newspapers was "our first intimation that he thought the company was insolvent."

Q—Did the directors discuss the matter at a meeting? A—No.

The witness further testified that Cohen came to Boston from New York at that time and brought his attorney, Griffith, with him.

SAYS FINK WANTED MORE

Q—Did you have any talk with Cohen or Griffith at that time about the affairs of the company? A—No, because Cohen knew what the conditions were.

Q—Did you have any further talk with Fink after you gave him a check for $1000? A—Yes, he demanded a check for $2000.

Q—When? A—About a fortnight later.

Q—Ho wdid that happen? A—I got word that he was to get $2000, and by that time I had regained my equilibrium and I said, "I'll be darned if I will give him any more without a vote of the board of directors," and $ told that to Mr McAuliffe.

Q—Did he get the money? A—To my knowledge, no.

Q—From your knowledge of what Fink did what is your opinion as to the value of the services he rendered?

"I don't think that is a proper question to aske about a brother lawyer," replied Treasurer Adams, who is an attorney.

Thew itness said that Ryan resigned and severad his connection with the company.

Q—Tell us the circumstances of Ryan's resignation. A—Mr. Castelli can tell you that.

AGE TAX FIGHT IN HIGH COURT

Washington, May 5 (INS)—Government counsel went into the Supreme Court today to uphold constitutionality of the old age annuity tax of the Federal Social Security Act.

The tax on both employers and 25,000,000 workers having been declared unconstitutional in the first circuit court at Boston, the government was forced to take the offensive in the oral argument. The high court allowed four hours for oral arguments.

The validity of the old age annuity tax was challenged by George P. Davis, stockholder in the Edison Illuminating Company of Boston. The circuit court held that the tax levied on employers and workers is not a true tax, but simply a device to regulate old age annuities beyond the constitutional power of Congress.

The government, invoking the general welfare clause of the Constitution, said in its brief that the number of old people in this country has increased so that the question of old age pensions is a national one.

U. S. 1937 Revenue Tops All of 1936

Washington, May 5 (AP)—The fiscal year 1937 to date has produced more revenue, a Treasury statement showed today, than the entire fiscal year of 1936.

The Treasury report, covering the current year through May 3, showed total income of $4,128,368,647. Receipts for the entire previous year were $4,115,956,615.

Customs receipts collected thus far this year have amounted to $403,086,892, in contrast with $286,811,593 for the previous 12 months.

Today's statement also revealed the Treasury's inactive gold fund was pushed over the $600,000,000 mark, increasing $29,655,248.

3700 Auto Workers In New Sit-Strike

St. Louis, May 5 (AP)—Members of the United Automobile Workers of America at General Motors' Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants began a sit-down strike today in protest against the discharge of 37 employes.

Norman Smith, organizer for the Committee for Industrial Organization, with which the Automobile Workers' Union is affiliated, said 3700 men ceased work an hour after the plants opened this morning, forcing a complete halt in operations.

80 WPA Workers Laid Off for Fires

Providence, R. I., May 5 (AP)—Eighty Providence Works Progress Administration men, employed at the Scituate reservoir, were "laid off" today by Philip J. Holton, Jr., superintendent of the city's water system, who charged that fires which broke out at the reservoir yesterday were of incendiary origin.

Holton's actic resulted in the 80 men going to city hall to protest against what they termed an unfair decision.

Wife in Suit Denies Any Red Activity

Salem, May 5—Denial that she was a Communist or that her marriage went on the rocks because of her interest in Communism was made in probate court here today by Mrs. Loretta A. Dunn of Lynn.

Mrs. Dunn is seeking a contested divorce from Harvey A. Dunn, also of Lynn, on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

The reference to Communism was injected into the cross-examination of Mrs. Dunn by her husband's attorney, Judge John A. Phelan.

Q—Weren't your arguments with your husband over your attending Communist meetings and because you were a Communist. A—No. I taught Americanization to a group of 12. I taught them the alphabet and how to be good citizens. And everyone is a good citizen today.

Q—Weren't you taken by a man named Kenneth Chuk to Communist meetings there? A—I don't even know the man and furthermore I'm not a Communist.

She previously testified that when she married on June 14, 1930, her husband was a widower with five children. She said it was her first marriage.

"I had $2000 when I married him," she said. "A few weeks later he began to loaf and I supported him."

Stowaway Drowns Fleeing N.Y. Ship

New York, May 5 (INS)—Fearing arrest and deportation, two stowaways gambled with death in the waters of New York harbor today.

Dominico Celbirto, 37, who claims he is an American citizen from Brooklyn, was saved by a lifeboat from another ship. The second man, an unidentified Frenchman, lost his life.

Four policemen risked their lives to save him as he clung to a piece of wreckage after a half mile swim, but he died as he was being taken to Staten Island Hospital. He had dived from the S. S. President Monroe at quarantine.

FLYING DOCTOR REACHES COAST

San Francisco, May 5 (AP)—Dr. Reginald D. Margeson of Boston, on his way around the world in a trip he hopes will establish a record for fastest passage on scheduled airlines, paused briefly here today. He arrived last night from the east on a United air lines ship at 11:58 P. M. (PST).

He went to a hotel in Oakland to spend the night preparatory to leaving at 3 p. m. today from Alameda, bound over the Pacific, in a Pan American Clipper ship.

2 High Schools Hold Prize Drills

At the state armory Bunker Hill street, Charlestown eight companies competed for five prizes. The Jamaica Plain drill was held at the John W. Murphy playground, Carolina avenue, Jamaica Plain.

The prize winning captains at Charlestown, in order of the awards, were George F. Bolduc, Edward F. McHugh, Walter H. Chapman, Joseph J. Bolduc and Angelo J. Pelosi. At Jamaica Plain they were Frederick Lovett, Bernard Pasquale, Clement Cosgrove, Rodney L'Amoureux and Walter Kay.

The first prize-winning captains automattically become colonels, the second are promoted to lieutenant-colonels and the next three winners are made majors.

Boy, 16, Drowned In Boat Collapse

Springfield, May 5 — Police dragged the Connecticut river today for the body of Earl Croteau, 16, Chicopee high school student, who drowned when his home-made boat collapsed.

Croteau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Croteau, and a companion, Frank Mearz, Jr., 17, both of Bonner street, were thrown into the river when the boat capsized.

Mears swam ashore.

Sinclair Lewis' Life in New Encyclopedia

He refused the Pulitezr prize.

He won the Nobel prize in literature.

But when Sinclair Lewis was graduated from Yale he couldn't get a single publisher to print his stories for nothing—much less pay for them.

You can find the life of this internationally known American author interestingly discussed in one of the volumes of the Standard American Encyclopedia which the Boston Evening American is offering its readers at a give-away price.

After leaving college Sinclair Lewis tried to sell his fiction but met with no success. It was only several years after he left a position of advertising manager that he became established as a writer. Many of his novels have been turned into stage versions and movies.

LATEST INFORMATION

Just as up-to-date as this story of Sinclair Lewis are thousands of others in the 15-volume set of encyclopedia. Supplementing the important stories, too, are the very latest photographs, some of which were taken shortly before the editions went to press.

Thousands of Boston Evening American readers have already started gathering these books for their own book shelves. Two books have already been made available and a third will be yours for the taking on Saturday.

There are no rules. It's only a matter of spending a few pennies a week and when you see these books you'll be amazed.

JUST CLIP COUPONS

All you have to do is clip the coupon, starting Monday of each week, on page 2 of the Boston Evening American. When you get six, consecutively numbered, bring them on Saturday to any of the coupon redemption stations conveniently located throughout Greater Boston with 44 or 68 cents.

Two superb bindings are offered and that accounts for the two prices—both remarkably low. Come and see for yourself and then make your selection.

Bomb on French Train Kills One

Marseille, France, May 5 (AP)—A mysterious bomb explosion on the Bordeaux-Marseille express killed a French passenger today and injured 20 others.

The bomb, apparently smuggled aboard the train, was tied to the coupling between two passenger coaches. Investigators said it was combination explosive and incendiary infernal machine.

It burst as the train hit 60 miles and hour, its maximum speed, and showered the passengers with glass splinters and baggage jolted from the racks.

Both cars were detached at a way station, while the train continued toward Marseilles.

The dead passenger's body was so badly burned it could not be identified immediately. The injured passengers were in a hospital here.

Malden Judge Calls 148 Old Fine Cases

Making good his threat of "pay up all court fines by May 5, or go to jail," Judge Elbridge G. Davis called 148 cases in Malden district court.

Forty-six defendants appeared and paid fines totaling $1,044.50. Eighteen other defendants pleaded they were unable to pay and Judge Davis gave them a few hours to get the money or go to jail. He ordered default warrants issued against 32 others who failed to appear in court today.

Many others had paid fines since Judge Davis issued his ultimatum several weeks ago.

DUKE ARGUES HIS EYE ON AUSTRIA

BUT BOTH WANT TO FORGET

May, when Edward's youngest brother, the Duke of Kent, may be best man.

The argument about a home, if it really could be called an argument, was this:

WALLY FAVORS U. S.

Wallis was understood to be urging America as a land in which the tumult surrounding her royal romance could be forgotten.

Edward, Duke of Windsor—the British monarch who chose "the woman I love" to the crown he might have worn one week hence—was pictured as wanting to make their home in Austria, whose people, he feels, are close to him.

Their trials of five months and one day of separation melted yesterday in a joyful embrace at the chateau.

Persons close to the household said Mrs. Simpson suggested that after the wedding they go to the United States, or at least to Canada, to escape the memories and traditions of royalty that still would bind them as duke and duchess.

Edward was understood to want to return to the Austrian tyrol whose mountains sheltered him during the self-exile that followed his abdication last December while Mrs. Simpson's divorce suit against a London ships' broker was still in the courts.

It was generally expected the marriage would be performed at the chateau near here, a landmark in the old Touraine country where the kings of France wooed their ladies.

The two were not pressed for time in their home-making decision because the duke, eager not to dim the glory of his brother's coronation next week in London, apparently had put off his marriage plans.

KENT DUE MAY 18

It was learned in official quarters that the Surete Nationale had been instructed to protect Edward's youngest brother, the Duke of Kent, on a trip into France May 18.

This seemed to indicate Kent would come here to stand as Edwards best man at the marriage.

Edward and his dark-eyed bride-to-be were expected to remain at the chateau, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bedaux, during the coronation of George VI, listening humbly—as other millions of British subjects the world over—to radio broadcasts of a ceremony that might have pivoted about the slim, blond Edward.

On the first complete day together since Edward's dash from St. Wolfgang, Austria, in response to Mrs. Simpson's plea that he "hurry" to her side, a wide array of pastimes awaited them.

Golf, tennis, riding and swimming all were available.

WILL REST UP FIRST

But Edward, appearing tired after his train and automobile trip, was expected to take things easy for a few days.

Rogers expected to test his skill at tennis with the duke. They play an even game.

Rogers expressed himself humorously as pleased that the chateau had no squash courts because the duke is expert at squash.

When the weather warms up, the castle pool may appeal to the royal visitor and his fiancee.

Mrs. Simpson has become acquainted with the show places of the countryside during her stay and would be an efficient guide if the duke chose to go exploring.

The Duke and Mrs. Simpson spent most of yesterday afternoon away from the other chateau guests. When a low flying airplane attracted their attention, they leaned out of a central tower window to watch it and gaze at the beautiful sunset before the evening rain.

CAMERAMAN SNEAKS IN

Only one incident—and this slight—disturbed the idyllic atmosphere of their reunion. A French cameraman who sneaked into the castle grounds during the afternoon, and hid among rhododendron bushes for two hours, was creeping up to the chateau to look through the dining room window when a Scotland Yard inspector collared him.

The photographer told of observing the duke and his fiancee strolling through the grounds, unaware they were being watched.

Mrs. Simpson was wearing a two-piece, navy blue sport suit and carried a golf club, the photographer said. The duke wore light brown.

An official of the Tours mayor's office said a wedding at the chateau seemed most likely and stressed that "secret marriages" are not permitted under French law.

"All doors must be opened," he said, but he added that "the minister of justice could probably arrange things for such important personages."

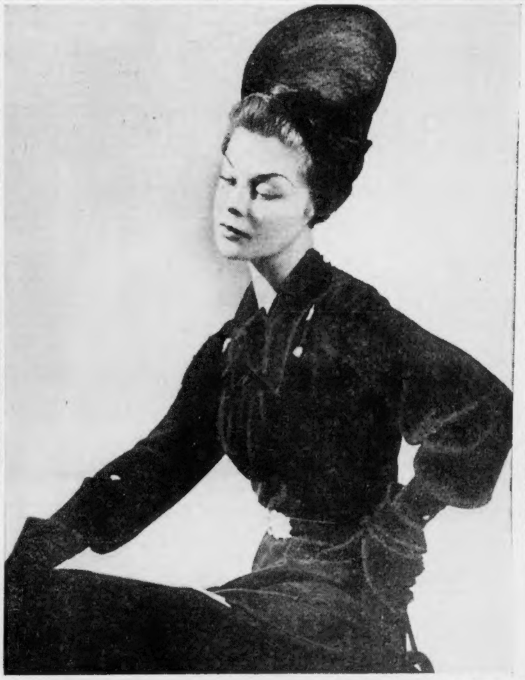
High Ranks for Wally

London, May 5 (AP)—Wallis Simpson will outrank many holders of ancient titles the moment she becomes the wife of the Duke of Windsor.

She automatically will become "her royal highness, the Duchess of Windsor" and entitled to all privileges of her husband's rank, including diplomatic immunity.

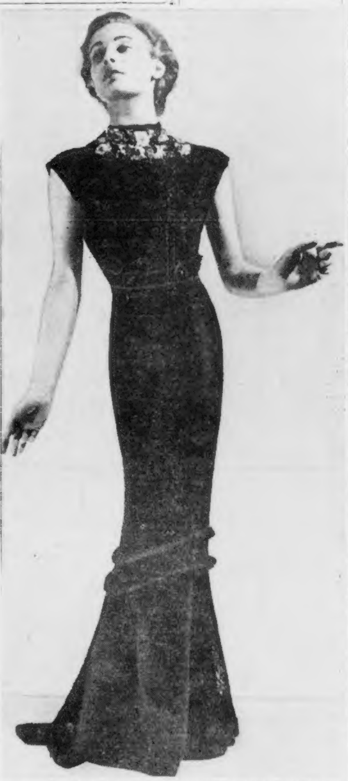
In turn, any children from her impending marriage would be titled, although none could aspire to the throne, because the former King renounced the throne for himself and descendants.

NEW ADDITIONS TO WALLY'S SMART ENSEMBLE



International News Photograph Service

Fit for a Duchess. Here is one of the charming Schiaparelli creations selected by Mrs. Wallis Simpson in her recent shopping expedition to Paris. This is a black crepe dress printed with small turtles near the neck-line. A novel black straw bonnet tops the ensemble.



This charming evening dress, designed by Schiaparelli, and already purchased, by Mrs. Simpson, probably for her forthcoming bridal, is a dinner dress in black wool net gauffre, embroidered in red. A matching jacket is worn.

14 U. S. Women Meet ROYALTY

2 BOSTON GIRLS PRESENTED

London, May 5 (AP)—More than 500 women gave last-minute touches to their shimmering gowns today in preparation for curtsies to King George and Queen Elizabeth at the season's first royal court tonight.

Fourteen American women will be among those to be presented in the Buckingham Palace ceremony, the first big fashion parade of the Coronation season.

Their Majesties will sit on golden thrones in the palace ballroom as the bejewelled women pass before them.

The gowns to be worn by the women who will be presented have been assembled according to definite instructions issued by the lord chamberlain.

Gowns of glittering lame or rich silk will have long court trains suspended from the shoulders. White ostrich Prince of Wales plumes will be worn in the hair, with white tulle veils floating from the base of the clusters.

Most of the debutantes will carry flowers or big ostrich feather fans.

Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, wife of the United States ambassador, will present the American women to the King and Queen.

She will wear a gown of maize and yellow silver brocade with a jewelled belt and a maize chiffon train or applique with brocade. Her jewels will be a diamond tiara, a necklace and a bracelet.

Ambassador Bingham and his daughter, Henrietta, also will attend. Miss Bingham has chosen a gown of stiff blue satin with a train of the same fabric. She will wear pearls.

Twelve of the American women to be presented today are:

Miss Eleanora [illegible]doin, Aiken, S. C.

Mrs. George Temple Bowdoin, New York City.

Miss Vesta Putman Culbertson, Chicago.

Mrs. F. Vernon Foster, West Orange, N. J.

Miss Lydia Fuller, Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Dozier L. Gardner, St. Louis, Mo.

Miss Julia Henry, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Byron Hilliard, Louisville, Ky.

Miss Catherine M. Maher, Lincoln, Neb.

Mrs. George W. Norton, Jr., Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. John Perrin, Boston, Mass.

Miss Anne Schenck, New York City.

Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the attorney-general of the United States.

Duke Enjoys Golf Despite Wally's Dog

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

Monts, France, May 5—Accompanied by a bare-kneed caddy in kilts, harassed by Mrs. Wallis Simpson's pet dog Snooky, and raided by flying photographers, the Duke of Windsor nevertheless managed to play a fairish game of golf today in his first round since his arrival from Austria.

He wore no hat, and in gray shorts he was as bare-legged as his caddy. A blue sweater, gray sox, and heavy brown shoes completed the outfit. Herman L. Rogers, his opponent, had a French caddy.

On the green below the railway the duke ended up with a six, after indifferent playing in which Snooky proved the chief hazard.

His drive carried 150 yards, but barely cleared a ditch. Although the duke made a fine second shot of nearly 200 yards, his third was 50 yards short of the green.

All the while Snooky was barking at his heels. When the duke was preparing his chip shot, the dog took up a position ten feet in front of the ball. Windsor yelled at him, but Snooky was imperturable and immovable.

Dropping his club, the duke leaped over to the dog, picked him up and carried him out of the way.

Then he made a fine chip shot within six feet of the cup.

After the duke and Rogers finished, Mrs. Rogers teed off alone.

Later Mrs. Simpson joined the duke at golf, with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bedaux, her host and hostess.

Wallis wore a light blue skirt—harmonizing with the duke's sweater—and a checkered jacket. All the women wore bandeaux on their heads. Together, the six players completed the 18 holes, watched by groups of reporters and tourists.

Duke Trims Wardrobe

Monts, France, May 5 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, who once set the continental fashion pace, brought only two street suits for his reunion with Walis Simpson.

They were a gray and a dark green double breasted, the gray with extra golf knickers. The Duke is determined, associates said, to do with two suits a year now to economize.

A full dress regalia which might be for his wedding was packed in one of the eight suitcases. He also brought three overcoats and three hats, eight pairs of shoes, his golf clubs and six canes.

Sets Africa-England Mark

Heston, England, May 5 (AP)—H. L. Brook, British flier, set a new plane record from Capetown, South Africa, to England, landing here today. His time was four days and 20 minutes, beating Amy Mollison's four days, 16 hours and 17 minutes.

Red-Jauan Parleys Fail

TOKYO, May 6 (Thursday) (AP)—Conferences between Foreign Minister Naotake Sato and Dr. Constantine Youreneff, Russian ambassador, with a view to improving Japanese-Soviet relations have ended in virtual failure, informed sourse said today.

Dorothy Killgallen Makes Bow to Royalty

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Copyright, 1937

London, May 5 (INS)—I curtsied to the Duke and Duchess of Kent last night.

It was my first bow to royalty, and I was too thrilled to do anything but murmur "Your Royal Highness,' but now that I have recovered from the excitement, today I am not speaking to anyone lower than a countess.

The occasion of what amounts to my debut in London society was a reception to the delegates from parliaments of the empire—the first important social function of the coronation season—and I was the only American present!

The great hall in the middle temple, one of the ancient inns of court, was crowded with nobility.

Standing at the far end of the hall, the Duke and Duchess of Kent were attended by an equerry and lady-in-waiting. Marina, the duchess, was lovely in a dusty pink crepe evening gown, ornamented with a huge bow knot. She wore a pearl tiara and diamond ear rings. The duke wore the decorations of the Order of the Garter.

Those present went up one by one or, if married, two by two. I went up alone to a highly decorated gentleman and announced my name.

The first thing I knew the duke had taken my hand and I was making what I fondly hoped was a graceful curtsey.

The duke smiled and said:

"How do you do?"

"Your royal highness!" was the only thing I could say. I don't get much practice at this sort of thing at home.

Marina, smiling graciously, was next. She held out a gloveless hand and I curtsied again deeply and, I think, a little better—I was getting used to it.

To Marina's "How do you do?" I gave what was by then my stock reply.

I was followed by a dowager in a tiara, so I felt I was not needed for conversational purposes and retired to the side of the room. There at a long refectory table I had myself a strawberry ice and met the terribly cute Viscount Dunedin, who explained the meaning of his various ribbons.

GRAND DUCHESS TO GO ON RADIO

New York, May 5 (US)—Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, who is related to the principal royal families of Europe, including Britain's, will speak from London in a descriptive coronation preview over the Columbia broadcasting system network May 8, it was announced today.

The Grand Duchess, whose talk is scheduled for 6:45 to 7:00 p. m. EDT., on that day, is attending the coronation as a special correspondent for Universal Service.

Author of an American best seller, "The Education of a Princess" and many articles for leading magazines, she makes her home in New York.

She is a first cousin of Marina, the Duchess of Kent and her uncle, the late Czar Nicholas, was a cousin of the late King George V, father of England's new king.

In her radio talk the Grand Duchess will describe European royalty. She lived through the terrors of the Russian revolution, escaping finally as a refugee and, after roaming Europe as an exile, she settled finally in New York City.

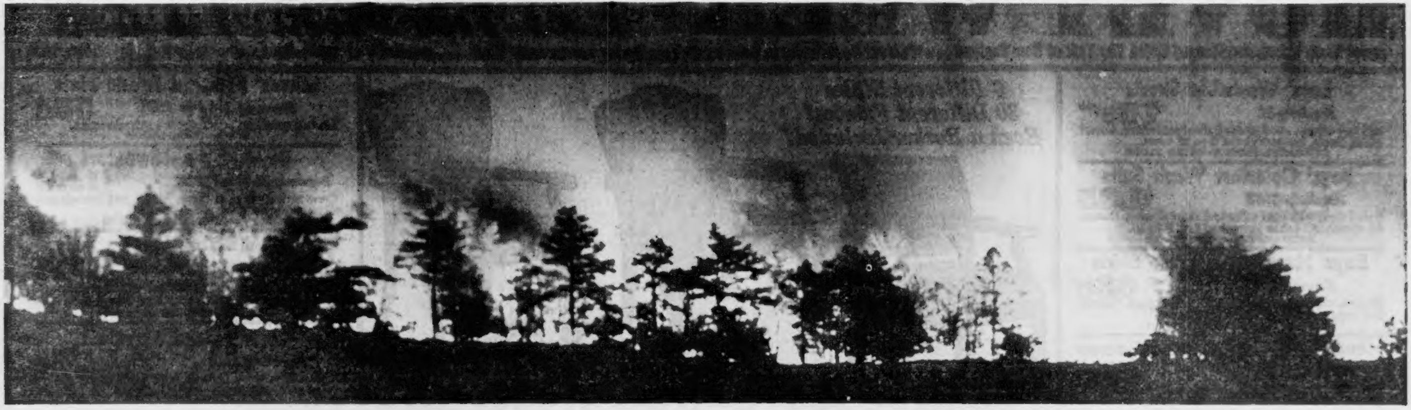
Rare Night Spectacle in Flaming Plymouth Woods



Full intensity of the raging forest fires in Plymouth is shown in this picture—snapped a matter of seconds before the remaining trees were consumed by the roaring flames

NEW MENACE FROM FOREST FIRES

FEAR SPREAD IN RISING WIND

With one man dead and another critically burned in Plymouth, the scourge of fire still swept thousands of acres of woodland in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire today.

The flames in the Plymouth section, which cut a swath seven miles long and two miles wide, were brought under control by daylight only to burst out afresh before noon when a strong southwest wind fanned them.

Burned to death in the woods near Symington road was Herbert Benton, 30, of Summer street Plymouth, who checked in as a volunteer fire fighter yesterday afternoon. He was married, with a small child.

His charred body was found by Arthur J. Terry, New Plymouth forester. Identification was made through a souvenir ring.

Another volunteer fireman, Jules Pina, also of Plymouth, was badly burned when he was trapped at a spot near where Benton's body was found. He is at Jordan Hospital.

Only heavy rain can erase the menace, forestry officials said. The woods and brush are so dry they are perfect tinder. The weather bureau could offer only light showers as hope.

Other Spots Hit

Fires in Hyannis and Easton were still burning, although they were gradually coming under control. In western Massachusetts more than 400 acres of woods and brush in the Ludlow, Granby and Belchertown sections were ablaez.

Thousands of acres of forest land in Washington county, at the eastern end of Maine, were burning, completely out of hand and only a drenching rain can halt the fire, officials said. Two houses have been destroyed.

Three serious fires in New Hampshire were finally extinguished after an all-night fight, but Forest Supervisor C. L. Graham said today that it may be necessary to close the White Mountain National Forest unless it rains.

The fire broke out at five points near Plymouth, and Fire Chief Albert Heller said the blaze was the worst since 1898 when flames swept from Ship pond to Carver.

A total of more than 1000 acres of valuable woodland was burned before more than a thousand exhausted firefighters and CCC boys won their battle.

Hundreds of summer cottages and many large estates were in the path of the flames. They were threatened anew today.

The bird sanctuary and deer enclosure on the estate of R. C. Symington, New Jersey millionaire, was swept by the fire and thousands of birds and hundreds of deer perished.

The mansion, a clump of cathedral pines and a forest of virgin pine were saved by firemen.

Sudden shifts in the wind endangered the fire fighters and made the course of the fire unpredictable.

Fifty volunteer firefighters in Hyannis narrowly escaped death when a sudden shift of the wind swept the flames toward them.

They fled to safety but a $3500 fire truck was destroyed. An Osterville boy was snatched from the path of flames after his clothes had caught fire.

Alarm Felt Over N. Y. Forest Fires

Albany, N. Y., May 5 (AP)—New York's forest fire situation was described as "bad" today, although a force of 750 men had gained control of 51 fires reported since yesterday morning.

The constantly widening areas affected by successive fires that have charred thousands of acres of timber and brushland gave added cause for alarm.

Contributing to the situation was a reign of abnormally high temperatures, now in its fifth day.

Housewives Fight Food Price Jump

Chicago, May 5 (AP)—Mrs. Wilbur Fribley, president of the Housewives' League of America, called upon half a million members today to fight the increase in retail food prices.

The organized housewives, she said, will concentrate their efforts on national and state tax legislation affecting food costs.

"We have given up the little petty battles," Mrs. Fribley said after touring league centers, "for a major offensive against widespread increases in taxes on food.

"Our studies show the price rise is due almost entirely to taxation. The Agriculture Department reported retail food costs 7 per cent above last year, the highest in six years."

V. F. W. Joins K. C. In Red Film Fight

Chicago, May 5—Charging that Soviet Russia's official film agency plans to flood Chicago with Communistic motion pictures, the Veterans of Foreign Wars today joined the Knights of Columbus in their fight to keep Red propaganda out of the city.

Egypt Town Razed

Cairo, Egypt, May 5 (AP)—Fire destroyed 385 houses in the village of El Bakatush in Lower Egypt and left 12 persons dead, 13 seriously injured and 2000 homeless today.

Charge Dope Sold in Worcester Jail

A Federal investigation into charges that narcotics were being smuggled into Worcester county jail and sold to prisoners was started today.

United States Attorney Francis J. W. Ford revealed that he had received complaints "from reliable sources" concerning the smuggling.

He issued a statement after he had talked over the phone with Sheriff H. Oscar Rocheleau, but refused to say whether the sheriff was his informant.

AGENTS ASSIGNED

Ford declared he had sent Assistant U. S. Attorney William T. McCarthy together with narcotic agents to the jail to investigate.

In answer to questions, Ford told newspapermen:

"Yes, I have received complaints from reliable sources that there has been dope selling to prisoners in Worcester County jail in violation of the Federal law.

"I have already ordered McCarthy to hurry there with narcotic agents," he added.

Ford said he first heard of the charges only this morning and that his investigation would be "broad in scope." He said he didn't know over how long a period the drugs had been smuggled into the jail or through what means.

HIDDEN IN FOOD

It was understood, however, that the drugs were allegedly being concealed in food delicacies brought by visitors.

Officials at the jail, apparently aware of traces of narcotics in the condition of several prisoners, immediately contacted federal authorities.

15th False Alarm Brings Store Fine

Buffalo, N. Y., May 5 (AP)—The big burglar alarm on a fur store rang falsely again last night and City Judge Robert J. Summers decided it was time to ring up a $5 fine.

"This is the 15th time in a year and a half," Detective Sergeant Gibbons reported.

Judge Summers declared the alarm a nuisance and assessed the fine against the owner under an anti-noise ordinance.

Heavy Weather for Pacific War Game

Aboard Battleship Pennsylvania, in Mid-Pacific Maneuvers, May 5 (AP)—The heaviest weather of any mid-Pacific fleet maneuvers gave the destroyer flotillas all the elements of realism today in the 1937 U. S. fleet six weeks war games.

Wearing life-jackets was the regular order of the day. Decks were flooded, great combers swept against chart houses as the little high speed scouts dug their prows under.

LOVE LETTERS TO NURSE READ IN BALM SUIT

made by the plaintiff herself as she went through theordeal of telling of her courtship and romance with the man she says she discovered was married after she had given him her heart.

One of the letters, a special delivery from Melanson's Swampscott home to Miss Hammond's Tamworth, N. H., adress, read:

TELLS OF LOVE

"Dear Nig:

"I have got to stay home until the last of next week and then I am coming up and tan your hide. I think that you're a little tetched in the haid. I don't know why I keep coming back for more, but I do. I guess that I love you so much I can't help myself.

"You were awful mean to me, dear. Why did you tell me all those things and give me so much hell? I don't think I deserve as much as that.

"Tell my babies not to get too lonesome for me because I am coming back soon. I will kiss each one of them. Well, honey, I miss you so much. When I am in bed at night I can't get to sleep thinking of you. Be a good little baby. I am coming back soon. With all my love,

"Greg."

WANTS ALL DATES

Another, dated December 1, 1934, was as follows:

"Dearest Celia:

"I miss you like the very devil, honey. If you told me one million times that you loved me, I would want to hear it just as much as ever. I love you so much, dear.

"I am being true to you and haven't the least desire to go out with anyone else. I hope you feel the same way.

"Well, honey, be a good girl. I am being the same. Tell your social secretary that she is fired, because I am the only one you're going to have dates with.

"With all (underlined) my love.

"Greg."

NERVOUS ON STAND

Part of another, dated Nov. 26, 1934:

"Dearest Celia:

". . . I don't like to be so far away from you, dear. I was thinking last night that it is an awful long way, but we won't be separated always like this. So keep up a good heart, dear.

"Did you put my babies to bed last night all right? Please write soon, dear, because I am awfully lonesome without you.

"With all my love,

"G."

"Dearest Celia:

"I am sorry that I couldn't come over yesterday but I thought that I explained the whole thing quite plainly. Now I know that those detectives are somewhere around Tamworth and it isn't worth my while to be seen over there. If they should be able to get anything on me it would cost me just $50,000 . . . Bertha is mad at me because I won't go, but I can't go so that's that.

"Do you miss me much dear? Are you being true to me? I will write again tomorrow.

"With all my love,

"GREG."

BATHING SUIT WARNING

July 8, 1935.

"Dearest Little Celia:

I woke up this morning and my chest was all congested so I don't think I will come over today. I am going to stay in all day and try to break it up. I have rubbed ointment on it and I think its a little bit better.

"I am getting a diet from Doc Clow and I am going to go on it and stay on it.

"Well, Honey, be a good girl and I will be over tomorrow afternoon around three o'clock.

"With all my love,

"Greg."

"P. S.—Tell Bertha I think she is tetched."

"June 15, 1935

"DEAR HONEY:

"It is so lonesome to-nite that I don't know what to do. It seems a year since I saw you and it is only just this afternoon. I wonder what your doing and if you've being goor or not.

"I am going to try and get over tomorrow night if I can. Don't worry about me being good dear because I couldn't be anything else. I wouldn't get any kick out of anybody else. Be careful of the white bathing suit won't you dear.

"I can't write anymore now but you know that you have

"My Love
G.

CALLED 'HONEYBUNCH'

"Dearest Honeybunch:

"What is the matter with you? I love you as much as I ever did, dear, and I am being good dear. Those darn detectives are still here in town. My hands are tied dear. I will come over just as soon as they leave. As for you going to court they can't bring you into court in Massachusetts. What do you think of my Florida idea. (referring to an offer of a job as a pilot).

"These darn detectives drive me crazy. There is a chance for me to make a few hundred dollars for us to get married on. This fellow is an awful nice fellow and he has offered me a good job. Please be sensible. You would get a job for the winter and I would be back March 21 to sue for my divorce.

"Write me right away what you think and get those cracked ideas out of your head.

"With all the love in the world.

"GREG"

The plaintiff, attired in blue, sat calmly on the witness chair during her testimony, but her hands twitched nervously. She spoke in a very low voice throughout.

Previously she had told the court that so ardent a suitor was Melanson that after she had consented to marry him he said:

KISSES REVEALED

"It's hard for me to wait, dear."

She testified that he hugged and kissed her five or six times, then "hugged me a lot."

Calmly she told Judge Collins:

"I said to him, 'Why can't we wait until we are married?'"

"At that time," her counsel asked, "did you have relations with him?"

"Yes," Miss Hammond replied quietly.

The girl related that Melanson constantly hugged and kissed her as he made his protestations of love and kept repeating "I love you a great deal."

Later Miss Hammond testified she asked Melanson to marry her at once. She related that he told her at that time he was "swamped with bills" and couldn't see his way clear to marry her.

"The next day I asked him again," the girl continued, "but he told me that if I really loved him I would wait for him. He told me he would marry me in June after the bills were cleared up."

Nurse Fights for Balm

If she told him she loved him a million times he'd still want to hear it as much as ever, Celia Hammond, Back Bay nurse, said Gregory Melanson wrote her. She produced one of his letters today to prove it at her $50,000 heart balm trial.

Urges Cut in Gas Tax to One Cent

A reduction of the gasoline tax from three to one cent was advocated today by Senator eGorge G. Moyse of Waltham at hearing before the Legislative Ways and Means Committee.

Moyse clashed with Raymond P. Delano of the Dorchester Board of Trade, who was urging a bill under which $5,000,000 of the gasoline tax proceeds would be taken from the state highway fund and transferred to the municipalities for repair and improvement of their streets.

Representative Adolph Johnson of Brockton favored giving one-half of the gasoline tax money to the cities and towns. Opposed to all distribution to the cities and towns, former Mayor Thomas J. McGrath of Quincy held that all funds coming to the state should be used as an offset to the state tax.

Austen Lake Writes:

IRELAND TODAY

(Here is the seventh article in the absorbing series, "Ireland Today," from the deft pen of Austen Lake, Boston Evening American staff writer now in Ireland. Mr. Lake cabled from Dublin yesterday on Ireland's calm in the constitutional crisis evoked by the DeValera pronouncement. His picturesque and informative stories of the Ireland of today will continue in the Boston American Friday and in next Sunday's Boston Advertiser.)

By AUSTEN LAKE

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Copyright, 1937. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.

(By air mail and steamship.)

Kildare Town,
County Kildare,
Ireland.

Our arthritic Ford turned northwest from the pleasant glens of Wicklow and moved toward the grassy plains of the Curragh. It was raining straight down in drops big as pennies as we breasted the steep rise through Wicklow gap. Dark-bellied clouds made a ceiling close overhead. Little swirls of mist detached themselves and went rollicking down a windswept gorge beside our unfenced trail.

The ever-present Irish sheep, with their owners' mark painted on tails and scruff, wandered knee-deep in heather and the cleft between the mountains was studded thickly with giant boulders as though Nature, tired from the task of making the hills, had dumped its surplus material in this lofty corner, and gone off to smoother, lowland levels.

Our gallant chariot coughed through Naas and Newbridge, which is now the Gaelic euphonism, Droichead Nuadh—severe and spinsterish little towns with gray-stone store fronts and itinerant flocks past which paralyzed traffic inches cautiously.

In the haze of late afternoon and the light of a blood-red ball of the descending sun we reached the edge of the Curragh — that limestone plain where grasses are rich in phosphates and nitrates and grow solid bones in the beasts that feed there, the Kentucky Blue grass region of Ireland.

Orders in Gaelic

The barracks of Curragh camp, military base of the Free State army, loomed ahead like a sprawling factory settlement and we stopped beside a quadrangle where the new Guard was being mounted, blocky youths in leaf-green uniforms and tan puttees who were commanded by an adjutant in tailored khaki.

The adjutant held a little cane under his armpit and snapped his commands in Gaelic, which an obliging orderly later translated for me. "Arrah," barked the officer, bringing his platoon to attention. "Arim ar goalin-cur!" and his men shouldered their rifles. "Arim le latruin-cur!" and they grounded the butts of their weapons beside shined tan toes. "Mideaga maisc" (Fix bayonets), "Deas umpig" (Right face) and finally "Gomeir marcal." So off they marched at a quick step to relieve the old guard and perform the boresome chore of patroling posts.

A boyish looking "leftenant" in his early twenties explained that new Free State recruits are first trained by English commands and later, as they become familiar with the drill manual, are taught equivalent orders in Irish, though barracks bulletins and extra-curricular orders are always read in English.

Day's Pay to Him

There is a small college for cadet officers in a far corner of the compound where thirty-five youths, chosen mostly from the enlisted personnel of the regular army, are taking two-year courses which lead to commissions as subaltern, or second lieutenant. But due to comparative youth among higher ranking officers, promotion is slow and the future dubious for these incoming "shavetails"—as is our American army term for its graduated West Pointer.

I attempted to interview the Curragh camp C. O.-General Sweeney, tapping the door-knocker of his vine-twined brick cottage, just beside the parade ground. But a typical military lady of the American "sabre neck" variety repulsed me at the door, saying peremptorily that the General was incommunicado to all journalists. He didn't like journalists, said the lady frankly. I didn't mind, because I dislike generals, too, whatever their nationality, though I am willing to put personal prejudices aside for professional ends. Generals, in any language, are bad luck.

Sure enough, in attempting to turn my antique Ford I backed into a drain, cracked a rear spring and flattened a tire—a major calamity with my limited kit of misfit tools.

Emerald Erin's Beauties Viewed by Lake

Austen Lake, in today's article in his gripping series on Ireland, pictures some of the natural beauties which have added for centuries to Erin's fame. Here is shown Wicklow's rugged gap and glens. Mr. Lake tells, too, of the grassy plains of Curragh and of sheep-raising and fine horse-breeding. In addition, in a separate cable, he gives the actual news of the reaction at home to President DeValera's charter plan.

But an orderly officer came out of battalion headquarters and summoned a soldier to find a jack and spanner from the neighboring artillery garage. The "buck" quickly changed to the spare and I gave him a half-crown (60 cents, for his trouble.

"Sure," said he, warping his wide mouth and stretching his freckles, "it's a day's pay in th' arrrmy."

While these roadside repairs were being made, I learned from the orderly officer that the Free State had about 5000 regulars in active service, of which two-thirds are in these addition there are 10,000 militia on call and 20,000 reserve volunteers—a total muster of 35,000 men for national emergency. Any coastal defense?

"Unfortunately," said the orderly officer with a wry grin, "th' British still undertake that for us."

"There were lads along the company streets wearing Glengarry bonnets, with little ribboned streamers behind—the mechanized. cavalry; and some with the French-style "kepi" similar to the U. S. "oversea's" cap — the volunteer reserve corps, who train only a month before returning to civil life.

Strike Pickets

Somehow, as I swung on through the reservation there was a nostalgic, memory-awakening reek that clings to miltary life the whole world over, bringing back a half-repulsive, half-wistful recollection of war days in France and its old rigors, wrangles and ribaldries.

The evening Angelus rang as we passed the last outlying sentry box and the soldier stood with grounded gun, holding his hat over his heart while the chimes drifted faintly across the Curragh and all human life within its hearing stopped to bow reverential heads.

It was gloaming and the vast rolling acres of Ireland's horse heaven were a sea of lush, rolling moor with the odor of brown earth and crushed grass. To the right the grandstand of the Curragh race course—the Churchill Downs of Erin—stood like a pale skeleton. Ahead, against the black background of oncoming night, the town of Kildare blinked its lights, —a hundred glimmering pinpoints in the dusk where all but the humblest of cottages are illuminated by the Shannon's hydro-electric scheme. High-tension towers carry the current cross-country in radiated lines from the generating station, three miles north of Limerick, and brighten the home of half a million townsmen and villagers.

There was a strike going on at Kildare among shop employes on one side of the business street with young men and girls carrying placards which read "Strike on, help us win" or, "Lock-out here, don't trade." A girl in a mackintosh and gum boots explained that the strike had started nine months ago when a victualler named Conlon gave a meat-cutter the "sack" and neighboring shop workers refused to handle his goods as they came in for reselling.

"So," said the girl cheerfully, "they sacked us, too."

There was a different sound that came through our windows at the Kildare Railway Hotel that night — different from the boisterous roar of midnight traffic in downtown Dublin and different again from the rushing gurgle of the water-brook which tumbled under our rooms at Glendalough. This time, during wakeful intervals, came the mournful bleat of nearby sheep, the querulous lowing of cattle. Faraway trains wailed like the howl of a lonely dog. A nightbird twittered sleepily and I looked down on low, white washed cottages which lay like ghost houses in the unlit streets.

Flowery Legend

A half mile from Kildare, near Tully, there is a bit of British soil where the National stud farm and the adjoining gardens of the late Lord Wavertree enjoy "extra territorial" rights under the Free State treaty. A fragile and stooped old gentleman named John Taylor showed me through the curious, allegorical garden which a Japanese landscape expert had laid out many years ago in a succession of paths which symbolize man's life from cradle to grave.

As we walked along the twisting, twenty-four-inch route, surrounded by dwarf pines and budding plants, Mr. Taylor related the flowery legend in the hushed tone of a church verger showing sainted relics. Our path descended into a tiny rock cavern.

"Man's first temptation," said Mr. Taylor. We detoured upward through a lighted recess. "Man repents and seeks the light," said Mr. Taylor.

The path led along a narrow lodge where dank herbs and murky pools lay in declivities. "Man's adult pitfalls," said Mr. Taylor.

And so on across a bridge of two joined stones, symbolizing marriage, and beside a purling brook where mottled gold fish swam and the banks were bright with red polyanthus and blue asyila.

"Their honeymoon," said Mr. Taylor, with a mild insinuating smile.

There was the Well of Wisdom and the Hill of Ambition, capped by a brilliant species of heather. And finally across a turgid stream to the ultimate spot were dwarfed willows mourned beside a grotto.

"Man's end," said Mr. Taylor.

It was, even in this early April season, an exquisite acre of horticultural poesy and I left my venerable guide, who, I fear, is not far from the symbolic willows himself, with real regret.

And so along a bush-bordered lane to the southern edge of the Curragh where range the Stud farms and training stables of half a hundred Irish breeders, who pay the Free State five Guineas, or about $26 for each horse that runs over or nibbles of the nourishing grasses.

Whole herds of slim-bellied, stringy-muscled thoroughbreds were romping over the plane as I trundled by, each with the unmistakable stamp of aristocracy in the bend of his neck and the gloss of his coat. It was a scene which resembled less a "daily occurrence" than an old Currier and Ives sporting print, dating back to the last century, with stable boys crouched over their steed's ears, caps reversed, and moving headlong in whole colonies, thirty to fifty horses in a group—over the moors to disappear in a hollow, emerge on a swell and thence beyond the skyline.

Tragedy With Speed

Largest of the Curragh breeders is J. J. Parkinson, a gray-headed, florid-faced, pine-knot of a man, who ships his blooded merchandise all over the world, wherever there are white rails and turf. He employs 90 men, feeding them at noontime in a mess hall like a circus, and housing in his library a treasure of silver trophies, each commemorating some famous victory.

Unfortunately, this morning, I witnessed a minor tragedy. I was watching Mr. Parkinson train two groups of racers on the Curragh, each 40 strong. He had galloped his favorite Irish hack to the crest of a knoll, waiting like a squat centaur while one of his squadrons "breezed" a headlong mile in a rush that kicked up divots, bellied the shirts of the riders and passed with a churning of rumps.

A two-year-old bay colt named Rhode Star, grazing on a lead rope, somehow broke free from its handler and went kicking its heels through the wild gorse, a stirring picture of vital life with the smell of liberty in its nostrils. Perhaps with an idea of early oats, he broke for the stable lane. But he careened as his slick hoofs met moist footing and crashed headlong into the head hostler's house.

He came up with a ghastly gash across his forehead, where the slate cornice had gouged deeply, and there was grim concern on the face of Mr. Parkinson as he galloped up and began extracting fragments from the gash with pincers, later dressing the wound himself, as a registered veterinarian.

A crowd of grooms circled around with anguish in their eyes, and Rhode Star's stable mates peered through stall doors, ears pricked curiously, sensing tragedy. Barefoot urchins from the neighboring cottages watched in mud-smeared silence. So I turned away, leaving "J. J." preoccupied with his surgery and knowing that, now, he had no mind for the promised history of the Irish thoroughbred.

The fickle sun was swimming in a high, water-color sky as I turned back across the Curragh. Dotted on the plain, as far as eye could reach, stable hands were jogging horses, nervous as leopards and bundles of incarnated vitality, blood and heritage. A year hence most of these will be gone to Russia, England, India and America, racing for new owners or rearing more progeny of blooded strain.

And then, the shaggy, spindling foals which now wandered behind walled pastures and came down to the gates to cast soft and wondering eyes, will take their elders' places on the Curragh—potential Derby and Grand National winners that earn for their Kildare masters an average of $3,000,000 a year.

Lake's Next From Sheep Country

Into County Kilkenney and County Waterford and to Waterford town rambles Austen Lake, Boston Evening American staff correspondent, in his next article of the captivating series, "Ireland Today," which will be printed in the Boston Evening American Friday.

He writes of the anthracite country and of the cattle country and of the "cradle of Irish Nationalism," and of "the whole seas of sheep with drovers in slanted caps and high neck-reefers urging them on, and shaggy dogs nipping the heels of stragglers."

LAKE CABLES ON IRISH REACTION

loss of their political hides by too vociferous an alarm.

Thus when the constitution comes up for its second reading before the Dail next Tuesday, the same tactful silence is forecast with the opposition's consent to waive the usual 14-day interval before entering it into committee. A few drafting amendments, perhaps, and the document will be ready for submittal to the plebiscite at the general elections in June or July.

Reference to the constitution as the so-called Document No. 2 traces back 16 years to the first formation of the Irish Free State Document No. 1.

It was the peace treaty signed with Britain on December 6, 1921, following the reign of black-and-tan terror, but the treaty rejected the articles of "No King and absolute separation" demanded by the republicans instructed by Eamon DeValera.

Pious Prelude

These latter articles then became known as "Document No. 2" and the famous bone of contention over which the bloody civil war was fought. Thus the new constitution embracing all the principles of Nos. 1 and 2 completes the historic trilogy. Perhaps no other constitution in the world defines so intimately the relationship between the citizen and his state or is framed in more spiritual language. From the pious prelude which opens, "In the name of the Holy Trinity we the people of Eire" to the Irish benediction at the end "Do cum gloire De agus onora na heirann" it is as much a credo as a legal manuscript.

Eire is not merely the Irish Free State, but the corporation of all Ireland from the toe of County Cork to the crown of County Antrim. An unspoken suggestion that the gates to the commonwealth will remain ajar at all times is for the northern counties.

Few constitutions elsewhere emphasize the household or family as the vital corpuscles of the national life stream lest the future bring temptations to forward a totalitarian form of government which might invade family rights by regimenting its youth. The Irish constitution stipulates that the child shall remain the irrevocable property of the parents in all matters religious and educational. Necessity for such an article may not be apparent among strangers to Irish community life, but there is a strong, almost fanatical, respect for family traditions in this land where blood and antecedents are a vital force and pedigree is a favorite conversational topic.

There is a deep veneration for the old stock in the Ireland that now is Eire, a passion for genealogy and that curious grouping instincts that traces back to the original Irish clans. So article 41 strums a responsive chord in the Irish heart.

There is also a deferential nod to Irish womanhood, with a typical touch of chivalry, though the opposition claims this is actually a political yoo-hoo to the female vote. There is a ring of a rural squire doffing his "cawbeen" and remarking: "Faith tis the hivins own dew in the blue of your eye."

The constitution in effect raises a crystal goblet and says "To the ladies" "in particular." Reads section 2 item 1. "The state recognizes that by her life within the home, woman gives to the state a support without which the common good cannot be achieved." The Irish are like that, even in legislative life. The article which safeguards marriage is serious and definite. Here the constitution provides that the law which has been the usual feature of Irish domestic life shall be perpetuated throughout the future.

To the Ladies

A canonical law which now becomes a statute, this provides positive and perpetual prohibition of divorce and precludes the possibility of legal machinery ever being set up for severing marital ties. There has never been such a convenience in Irish life, even when the British divorce laws became effective in the United Kingdom. Elsewhere further evidence of Irish regard for family then follows.

The fundamental outline of free worship regardless of creed, respect for denominational property, the principles of social justice and education, and the right to own property are noted. In the last respect the Irish state regards land as the collective possession of the nation and reserves the right under that repetitious tenet which runs through the entire constitution "for the common good" to acquire such land as it deems necessary at a fair compensation.

Thus the text comes to the question of "occupations" and states "there may be established on the land in economic security as many families as in the circumstances shall be practical. "This is provision for the continuance of the migration scheme, which is steadily transplanting folks from the impoverished areas of the mountainous west to the fertile regions of Meath and Louth.

And so the English and Irish text of the document runs concurrently to the end. The curious arabesques of the literate Irish on the left and the English paraphrase on the right and, finally, in deference to an age-old nationalism in a modern frame, the text concludes with the provision that where English and Irish conflict, the Irish shall prevail. It has the ring of revelations and the suggestion that after seven centuries the Irish at last constitutionally have prevailed.

Knickerbocker on Spain

Anarchist Revolt Gives Rebels Edge

(Editor's note: How an uprising of anarchists in Catalonia has passed the advantage in Spain's civil war to the insurgents is graphically described today by H. R. Knickerbocker, famous International News Service correspondent. The anarchists' activity has renewed Britain's conviction it would be better for the rebels to win the war, Knickerbocker writes. He recently rushed from the war zone to London to send his dispatches on latest developments in Spain free of official censorship.)

London, May 5—Anarchy blasted its way to the front again in Red Spain today and a rising of the dreaded Federation of Spanish Anarchists in Catalonia once more passed the advantage in the civil war to Rebel Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

It is calculated not only to cripple his enemy by disorganization, but to improve his position in Europe.

From the beginning of the war, neutral Europe tended to favor Franco because he stood for "law and order," and Italy and Germany were able to assert they were intervening on Franco's side to save Spain from chaos and avert from Europe the danger of a "red spot of infection."

Wholesale slaughter of priests, nuns, aristocrats and rich middle-class people by the Reds at the outset of the conflict alienated especially British sympathies, but during the last few months the Valencia government convinced many persons that the anarchist murder gangs had been suppressed and order restored.

This, combined with the destruction and partial extermination of Guernica by Franco's German bombers, swayed the British government to defy Franco's protests and send the British navy to convoy basque women and children and old men from Bilbao to a refuge abroad.

In Franco's Favor

Now, however, the fresh outbreak of anarchists in Catalonia has renewed British conviction it would be better for Franco to win, for, whatever the cost, it is a fact he maintains on his side considerably more order than prevails on the side of his enemies.

Personal observation supports the general impression that atrocities committed by both sides in the war are equally bad and executions behind the lines of Reds and Whites equally numerous.

But it is a fact that mob violence is almost unknown on Franco's side, where the executions are carried out by order in an "orderly" fashion.

All the atrocity stories told by each side are probably true, judging from those personally witnessed. Revolting though atrocities are on any side, the point is Franco controls his situation and his orders are obeyed and he has had no trouble within his own ranks which he has not been able instantaneously to suppress.

His most serious mutiny was that of 35 officers and men of the air corps at Tetaun, Morocco, around Easter. They apaently were original sympathizers with Madrid and were compelled to remain under cover until the moment they believed they had a chance to escape.

They were discovered and shot. I could find no evidence that their action represented any widespread feeling of disaffection in Franco's army.

It chanced that I arrived in Salamanca in time to witness the end of the next serious trouble Franco had in his own ranks. It was an internal fight, apparently not yet reported authentically abroad, within the Falangist Napanol (Fascist) organization, whose leaders started to fight it out with revolvers and hand grenades.

All Rounded Up

The fight concerned rivalry between the head of the Fascist militia, Augustin Aznar, and the chief of the Fascist party, Manuel Hedilla. The Aznar gunmen and the Hedilla gunmen shot and grenaded one another until three were killed and several wounded, but within a few hours Franco's police rounded up the lot and threw them in jail.

Considering that Aznar and Hedilla headed more than 100,000 soldiers and claim 2,000,000 followers, Franco's immediate liquidation of their feud seemed good evidence he is able to maintain order.

It was following this episode that Franco decreed compulsory unification of all military and political organizations on his side into one unit, provisionally called by the awkward name, "Traditional Spanish Phalanx."

The differences among these followers of Franco are almost as great as the difference between the Anachists and Communists on the Red side. Nobody knows how long Franco will be able to hold them together, but the fact is he has united them while his enemies in Red Spain have broken out in Anarchist rebellion.

In fighting a war, dictatorship has advantages.

UPRISING OVER, REDS CLAIM

Perpignan, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 5. (AP)—A government radio broadcast from Barcelona announced "peaceful settlement" today of the anarchist uprising against the Catalan and Valencia Spanish regimes.

The brief, bloody rebellion is reported to have cost 100 lives and split the forces fighting the Spanish insurgents.

The strife weakened the Madrid-Valencia Government's position against General Franco's Insurgents.

Basques Say Rebels Out to Bar Evacuation

Bilbao, Spain, May 5 (AP)—The Basque government defenders of Bilbao charged today that "an Italian destroyer" and seven Insurgent fighting ships were massed off this Biscayan port in an attempt to prevent by force the evacuation of 2,300 women, children and old men.

The Basques said they would defy the Insurgent fleet.

Reds Claim Barcelona "Calm" After Strife

Valencia, May 5 (INS)—Spain's harassed government met hurriedly today and "examined the Barcelona situation," according to an official announcement, after which a communique was issued claiming the Catalan capital was "calm."

Reds Prepare for New Attack on Madrid

Madrid, May 5 (AP)—Insurgent concentrations north of Guadalajara were bombed, it was reported today as government sources expressed belief a new advance toward Madrid might be launched fro that region.

Britain Rushes Warships to Barcelona

London, May 5 (INS)—The British government today rushed the cruiser Dispatch and the destroyer Hostile to Barcelona to aid in protecting British lives and property. The destroyer Gypsy is already in the harbor.

Britons Advised To Quit Santander

Santander, Spain, May 5 (INS)—British nationals in this threatened Loyalist city today were advised by the embassy, now temporarily in Hendaye, France, to evacuate as soon as possible.

RECOVER TORSO OF KILLERS' 8TH VICTIM

Cleveland, May 5 (AP)—Coast Guards took the lower portion of a woman's torso from Lake Erie today, giving new impetus to the police investigation of Cleveland's series of beheadings.

Coroner Samuel R. Gerber reported to police that the piece of human flesh found today definitely was the lower part of the torso found in the lake nearly ten miles away about two months ago—the eighth victim of the killer. The vertebrae of the two portions matched as did the angles of the cuts, he said.

The portion of the body found today had been cut off below the breasts and at the hips. It was first seen in the lake by Howard Yochem, operator of a lake front concession.

ONLY 3 IDENTIFIED

The bodies of four male victims were found in Kingsbury run, a small dirty stream flowing through the downtown section. Only three of the victims ever have been identified.

The first, a woman was found September 5, 1934, on the eastern shore of Lake Erie4.

Coroner Gerber, who has made a thorough study of the killings, said he believed all were committed by the same person. The cutting in each case was neatly done, apparently by a person acquainted with body structure.

"FRIENDSHIP" LURE

Dr. Gerber said "friendship" probably is the lure which led the victims into the killer's hands. He warned police several weeks ago that the slayer probably was "making friends" with his next victim.

"The absence of marks of violence on the victims," Dr. Gerber said, "suggests that these people probably traveled unsuspectingly in the company of the perpetrator of the crimes and may have known their slayer well."

He pictured the killer as a shrewd, cruel person who waited until public interest in the latest crime had abated before waylaying his next victim.

N. J. Governor Hit in Parker Trial

Newark, N. J., May 5 (INS)—Sensational testimony by Paul Wendel today portrayed Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey as seeking the vice-presidency of the United States through his activities in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

Wendel told his story at the Federal court trial of Ellis H. Parker and his son, Ellis, Jr., who are accused of instigating the kidnaping of Wendel and wresting from him a false "confession" to the Lindbergh baby's abduction.

The "confession," subsequently repudiated, coincided with last-minute postponement of the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann. The execution went forward after state officials who prosecuted Hauptmann branded Wendel's "admissions" as preposterous.

Much of Wendel's testimony in which Governor Hoffman was mentioned, was ordered stricken out when defense counsel protested.

Republic Steel, CIO Parley May 11

Cleveland, May 5 (INS)—Management of Republic Steel Corporation, the nation's third largest steel producer, served notice upon the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization today that it sees no necessity for a signed contract "in view of the Wagner act."

The Republic management, however, agreed to meet with officials of the steel workers organizing committee of the CIO, and set May 11 as the date for the meeting.

Collapses on Stand

WOMAN WEEPS, TRIAL HELD UP

Mrs. Delia Gordon of Brookline collapsed in Dedham probate court today in the midst of testimony of how her husband frightened her by poking a revolver in her face.

Her sobs and tears were so uncontrollable that Judge Joseph R. McCoole halted the trial until she was in condition to resume testimony.

Mrs. Gordon is suing for a divorce from Robert A. Gordon, electrical engineer, charging that he was cruel and abusive to her.

Gordon is fighting the action and has already filed in Suffolk court a $200,000 alienation of affections suit against Joseph S. Gould, wealthy Commonwealth avenue realtor.

The petitioner, prior to her collapse, had denied that there was ever anything wrong in her relations with Gould.

She said that while she used to go out automobile riding with him, she never went to a theater or other public places in his company, and that while he lived at her home for six weeks after her husband departed she was always fully dressed in his presence.

She told Judge McCoole that she was married in Boston on June 9, 1915, and that she and her husband separated in 1935. For the six years prior to 1935, Gordon drank whiskey and home brew continually, she declared.

"He used to come home at night and start right in on the home brew," she testified. "He'd drink it all night. Sunday's he'd start in the morning and keep it up all day.

"He always had a bottle of whiskey to go with the home brew too. Sometimes when he was arriving home at night he couldn't find the keyhole in the front door."

"Then he'd ring the bell and wake me up. He'd come into the house and pick up the telephone and call a woman.

"He'd say: 'Hello, dear,' and then go into a long conversation and when he got through he'd stagger up to bed."

Mrs. Gordon said she was in continual fear of her husband.

"He used to have a revolver under his pillow," she testified. "Sometimes he suddenly poked it in my face. I was frightened to death. The strain was so much it affected my health. I couldn't sleep and I became nervous and hysterical."

PROBE OF DROWNINGS ON CHARLES STARTS

Charging that the Metropolitan District Commission has refused to use $250,000 set aside for boating improvements on the Charles River, the Community Service of Boston today joined hands with local boating associations to investigate the causes of recent drownings and to boycott all boatmen not approved by them.

Officials of Community Service, backed by Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman, conferred today with boating club representatives at the Service headquarters, 739 Boylston street.

Both organizations charged that the District Commission has $250,000 under its control to make boating conditions more safe; that drownings were caused by poorly constructed boats and incompetent boatsmen.

Under the scheme formulated, the neighborhood boating clubs and Community Service would have full supervision over all small pleasure craft on the river.

An "official sailboat," costing less than $15, and so constructed as to insure maximum safety, was adopted by the Service and the clubs. Membership in the new organization, to be known as the Community Boating Association, would be restricted to those who contributed to the construction of an official boat, either financially, or by labor on a boat under construction.

Any boatman, unable to pass a swimming test or incapable of handling small craft, would not be allowed to put a boat in any of the boathouses along the river or to anchor craft in the Charles River Basin.

Compass Test Ends as Ferry Grounds

Making a run around the harbor to test the compasses, the municipal ferry-boat Ralph J. Palumbo went hard and fast aground Bird Island flats, off the airport at East Boston, today.

The city steamer Michael Perkins, the police boats Watchman and Curtis and four tugs all tried to get the stranded ship free, but in vain. Marine officials said they would have to wait for high tide at 7:40 tonight.

Worcester Bribe Probe Ordered

Worcester, May 5—Evidence in the attempted bribery scandal unearthed by the city council will be presented Monday to the grand jury, District Attorney Owen A. Hoban announced today.

The alleged attempt to influence councillors in their vote has delayed for some time decision on the question of an incumbent in the office of assistant superintendent of public buildings.

Ernest M. Bickford, present incumbent has been in ofice 10 years

MAYOR SEEKS AIR BASE HERE

Mayor Mansfield flew to Washington today to seek a contract from the Postoffice Department making Boston the western terminal of the proposed transatlantic air mail service.

He was to meet Senator David I. Walsh for luncheon and later both were to confer with Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and Massachusetts members of the House of Representatives, the mayor said.

"I expect to be in Washington for three days. I have appointments with officials of the post-office, state department and department of Commerce, and we will urge our cause to them.

"Boston airport has every facility for handling the ships and our post office has every facility for handling the mail. We are going to make every effort to get this all-important contract for our city."

The mayor was asked if he intended to offer his support to Congressman John W. McCormack should the latter enter the mayoralty race.

"I am going to Washington for the purpose of getting an air mail contract," was his reply.

The new air mail service will go into effect when plans have been completed for the regular commercial plane service from this continent to Ireland.

PEPPERELL YOUTH FOUND SLAIN BY AXE

Pepperell, May 5—With the back of his head bashed in by an axe, a 23-year-old mill worker was found murdered here today in a barn at the rear of his home.

The unclad body of the victim, Thedius Grautski of Groton street, was found lying on an axe covered with blood.

Another axe, its handle and blade also smeared with blood, was found against a wall of the barn, three yards away from the body.

Police Chief Clifford L. Walcott pointed out that it seemed impossible that the axe wound in the man's head could have been self-inflicted. Chief Walcott summoned Medical Examiner Edward Lilly of Shirley.

The body of Grautski was found by his mother when she entered the barn today. Almost overcome, she staggered into her house and told her husband and other children. They called police.

Chief Walcott stated the slain man was last seen at about 10 o'clock last night when he went to bed, suffering from a slight cold which had kept him from work. Grautski is employed on the night shift at the Nashua River Paper Company plant here.

A brother, Boics Grautski, told Chief Walcott that he did not hear his brother moving about during the night. He first learned of his brother's death when he was awakened by members of his family.

The brother informed Chief Walcott that he talked with Thedius for a few minutes before going to bed and that the latter appeared very jovial.

Besides his parents, the slain man had three brothers and three sisters. Neither could account for any possible slaying motive, the police official said.

SHOE STRIKERS BACK AT WORK IN MAINE

A 42-day-old shoe strike at Lewiston and Auburn, Me., ended today in three of 19 factories involved, as strikers returned to work through National Guard sentry lines.

Agreeing to hold a "consent" election next week, to determine whether CIO organizers may represent the workers in collective bargaining, workers of the Morphy, Prospect and Highland Shoe companies, normally employing 700, returned to their benches today.

At the same time, trial of seven CIO leaders charged with contempt in violating a court injunction, went into its second day before Justice Harry Manser.

1600 ON STRIKE

Meanwhile, labor troubles centered in five Massachusetts cities today, with Fall River as the most threatening point.

Approximately 1600 textile workers who went on strike late yesterday at the Schnierson Sons Company mill, today stationed pickets in front of the plant, and prepared for a mass meeting at Polish National Home.

Police patrolled the mill, where only 10 workers remain. Strikers are asking a $15 minimum wage, a 40-hour week and 15 percent wage increases.

Strikers at eight fuel-supply firms in Quincy went back to work today, under a tentative agreement reached last night.

A public hearing will be held at Clinton Friday, in an effort to settle the strike there, the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation announced today. More than 400 workers are affected.

LOWELL WALKOUT

Strikers at the Booth Mills at Lowell, where 500 walked out yesterday, sought to lure loom-fixers to join the strike.

At North Easton, 85 employes of the Steadfast Rubber Company, closed since Monday, presented a proposal for new working conditions.

CIO headquarters in Boston today announced that an agreement between the Drug Workers' Union and the United Drug Company has been signed, affecting 900 workers.

President Backs Florida Project

Washington, May 5 (US)—The Roosevelt administration today formally threw its support behind the proposed Florida ship canal, as secretary of the navy recommended its construction as a national defense standpoint.

In a letter to Chairman Mansfield of the House rivers and harbors committee, which has the project under consideration, Secretary Swanson said the canal would:

"Shorten the distance and provide route for seagoing vessels between the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic ocean, which would be of material value during war to the shipment of necessary materials for both military and commercial use."

Clear Girl Student In Death of Baby

The Sufolk county grand jury reported today that it had found no indictment in the case of 20-year-old Harriet Boyden of Marathon, N. Y., accused of strangling her newly-born infant on April 3.

Miss Boyden, a student at an exclusive Back Bay school, is still in Massachusetts General Hospital. She had been charged with the murder of the baby and concealment of its death. The body was found in a closet in her dormitory. There is now no charge pending against her.

7 BADLY HURT; MORE FILM RIOTS FEARED

Hollywood, May 5 (INS)—With seven men seriously hurt in rioting and a hundred others nursing bruises, terror gripped the strike-torn film capita ltoday.

Fearing trouble, labor strategists withdrew women from the lines of pickets surrounding the major studios.

At the same time producers swept aside preliminaries and launched negotiations through which they hope to end the worst strike in the history of the $225,000,000 motion picture industry.

500 POLICE ON DUTY

Almost 500 policement, armed with tear gas and guns, were detailed to the studios after the striking Federated Motion Picture Crafts held a mass "pep rally" last night and reiterated its determination to bring the film-producers to bay.

First major violence in the strike broke out last night when 50 unidentified assailants forced their way into a meeting of the International Alliance of theatrical stage Employes and began hurling furniture.

Six men applying for IATSE membership were hurt in as wild a riot as any ever staged before the cameras here.

The ten striking craft unions of the federation have charged that the IATSE is "company dominated" and is attempting to break the strike by signing federation men.

DNEY RIOT SANCTIONED

Both labor leaders and producers, however, denied that that riot was sanctioned by strike headquarters.

John Kline, a property man at Universal Studio, was set upon by four unidentified man and severely beaten. Hospital attaches reported he was near death with a skull fracture.

In the midstof ths intra-labor warfare, Pat Casey, labor representative for the motion picture producers association, announced negotiatios had been launched on two fronts.

FEARS GANG WILL KILL HIM IN HOSPITAL

Fear that members of a gang would attempt to "finish the job," even in Johnson Memorial Hospital, where he is confined, were expressed to police today at Stafford Springs, Ct., by Walter J. Miller, 37, former Chelsea fireman.

Miller was shot last Sunday night with the same gun used in the shooting of Patrolman Thomas G. Supple in a Dorchester house three days earlier.

While the policeman said he did not see the assailant and his companion, Miller has named to police the man who shot him. At the same time he pleaded for additional police protection, claiming, according to police, that the assailant is a member of a gang.

HUNT IN SIX STATES

Search for the known gunman was being conducted in Boston and in six states as a result of the shootings.

Sergeant Edward J. Seibolt, ballistics expert for the Boston police department, discovered, after nine hours of exhaustive tests, that the bullets extracted from the bodies of Supple and Miller were fired from the same revolver.

Meanwhile Boston detectives admitted that they had received an underwold "tip" that an out-of-town mob had planned a $50,000 payroll holdup of a Boston firm.

KEY FITS LOCK

The "tip" was confirmed when a suspect was picked up by detectives and a key found on his person that fitted exactly the lock in the cage of the paymaster's office door. A guard has been thrown about the offices of the firm.

Connecticut state troopers were searching for the hideout of the gunmen who shot and critically wounded Miller last Sunday morning, then dumped him onto the highway near the town of Tolland.

Patrolman Supple, still in critical condition at City Hospital with a bullet wound in his abdomen, fired by a gunman he has identified as a "redhead," was shot last Thursday when he surprised two men looting a house on Milton street, Dorchester.

Lewis' N. E. Visit Off Until May 23

Lawrence, May 5—John L. Lewis, national head of the CIO, will make his first New England appearance May 23 instead of this Sunday as originally announced, CIO officials said here today.

Lewis was to have arrived here Sunday to address a mass meeting of textile workers on the North Common, but a two weeks' postponement was necessitated because of press of business in Washington.

Anthony Valente, director here of the textile workers' organizing committee, announced the change in plans.

Huge Nazi Vacation Steamer Launched

Hamburg, Germany, May 5 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler attended the christening today of the steamer Wilhelm Gustloff, something new in Germany's merchant marine.

Purely a pleasure craft, the Wilhelm Gustloff was built just to give vacationing Nazis ocean-going luxury. (This movement is a phase of Germany's labor front, designed to keep workers happy by providing holidays and recreation).

To be the fifth largest German passenger liner, the 25,000-ton cruise ship will have no class distinction. Even the crew's quarters will be fitted up like staterooms.

New Dealer Leads In California Poll

Santa Barbara, Calif., May 5 (AP)—A "Roosevelt Democrat" appeared to be the winner today over a Republican and a write-in Democrat favoring the President's new court plan in the race for the 10th California congressional district seat.

A tabulation of approximately 63 per cent of the vote cast yesterday gave Alfred J. Elliott, 16,164. His Republican opponent, Harry Hopkins, former state highway commission chairman, had 12,678.

M'ADOO DRAFTS IN SECRET NEW COURT PLAN

Washington, May 5 (INS)—A secret amendment to President Roosevelt's Supreme Court bill was being prepared today by Senator McAdoo (D) of California, for submission to the Senate judiciary committee for consideration.

His proposal was reported to involve a new plan for injecting "new blood" into the Supreme Court in the future. McAdoo declined to reveal its details before presenting it to the committee probably next Monday.

McAdoo has endorsed the President's court plan and was understood to favor an amendment only to strengthen it.

DEBATE COMPROMISE

The committee, meanwhile, renewed debate on three compromise measures. These were the McCarran plan for an outright increase of two justices on the high court, the Hatch plan to provide one new justice a year and the McGill plan, authorizing appointment of two new justices every four years.

A poll of the committee already has discussed sufficient opposition to kill all three compromises. Despite this opposition, Hatch and McGill were urging their substitutes in order to present them later to the Senate even though rejeced by he commitee.

O'MAHONEY ON AIR

The McGill proposal would authorize new justices every four years if that many sitting justices weer over 75 years of age, but prohibit filling of vacancies except to maintain the court of nine members. It would, like the President's bill, fiv the maximum membership at 15. Under it, President Roosevelt would name four new justices.

Tonight Senator O'Mahoney (D.) of Wyoming, former assistant postmaster-general, will attack the President's plan in a radio speech. O'Mahoney came out against the plan last week, along with Senators McCarren and Hatch.

Freighter Runs Aground

Jacksonville, Fla., May 5 (AP)—The freighter Kenowis sent out a call for assistance early today, reporting she was aground at Holmes Point on St. Andrews Bay, Florida. The Kenowis normally carries a crew of 32. The coast guard cutter Dix was ordered to assist the freighter.

DEATH TO TELL ABOUT IMMORTALITY

SIR OLIVER WAITS REPLY

Sir Oliver Lodge, world-famous scientist, reveals in the following exclusive interview how he has made secret plans to test after death his theories of immortality and communication between the dead and the living.

By EVAN MORTON

World copyright, 1937, by Universal Service. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.

London, May 4—Tall, white-bearded, nearing 86, a giant of modern science sits in his garden by the side of Shakespeare's Avon river eagerly awaiting death.

Eagerly, because death to Sir Oliver Lodge will mean a lifting of the veil—completion of a life-long experiment.

"Only when I die," he said to me cheerfully, "will I find the answer to a thousand questions that have been puzzling me for decades.

"I believe in personal immortality, as all the world knows.

"I have gone perhaps deeper into psychical research than anyone living. But I still do not know exactly what happens after death.

Son's Messages

"My dear son, Raymond, who was killed in the war, has sent messages trying to explain what it is like to live on the other side of things, but the only clear impression he gave is that one lives entirely in the mind, that places, objects, people exist only insofar as they have already been created in the brain-mirror of a living being.

"This is difficult to understand, perhaps, but I hope soon to have it put clearly before my own eyes, when I am dead. Then I shall be able to complete my researches.

"I shall 'come through' to my friends who are still living and attempt to give them some definite idea of what they may expect when they, too, cross over.

"To this end, I have written detailed secret instructions, which I have placed in sealed envelopes and handed to the Society for Psychical Research.

"Nobody but I knows what I have said in these instructions—unless some of my departed friends, whose powers are so much greater than those of living people, have been taking a peep into the several envelopes.

"I am an old man. Though perfectly hale and hearty, I have finished my job and can only sit and wait for the end of my life with an almost boyish anticipation."

Bandits Rob Bank Cashier of $7000

Plymouth, Mich., May 5 (AP)—Two men who entered the First National Bank through a ventilator during the night forced the cashier to open the vault when he arrived today and escaped with approximately 7000. They left four bank employes and a patron bound in the basement.

Jack Taylor, cashier, said the robbers threatened to shoot him unless he opened the vault.

Claremont Fire Chief Dies

Claremont, N. H., May 5 (AP)—Cornelius E. Sears, 73, fire chief of Claremont for the past 38 years, died today at Claremont General Hospital after a long illness.

Blind, 62, Faces Life Prison Term

New York, May 5 (US)—Sixty-two year old David MacLevy, blind and white-haired, must spend from fifteen years to the rest of his life in Sing Sing.

General Sessions Judge Donnellan imposed that sentence on MacLevy today for theft of $4500 in jewelry from Mrs. Rose Goldstein. MacLevy was to have sold them for her.

Ellen Sturgis Potter Weds In Church Ceremony

By BETTY ALDEN

WEDDING BELLS chimed from the quaint tower of the Church of the Advent this noon to an[illegible] the wedding of Ellen Sturgis Potter to Rev. Edgar William Wilcock . . . the service had [illegible] significance, for the bridegroom, [illegible] for some time, has received [illegible] and his soft responses in the ceremony today were the last the parishioners will hear of his voice for some time . . .

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Briggs Potter of Pinckney street, was given in marriage by her father, and wore a simply made gown of soft white net . . . Her veil was also of net and she carried lilies of the valley . . .

She was attended by her cousin, Rachel Warner, president of the Junior League . . . Miss Warner's gown was of yellow net and she wore a coronet of flowers in her auburn hair . . .

The ceremony was attended only by the families of the bridal couple . . . last evening, in celebration of the wedding, there was a small family party at the Potter's residence . . .

The bride is a member of the Junior League . . . she is a niece of Mrs. Ward Thoron, Mrs. Roger Warner and Mrs. Greely S. Curtis, all of whom are sisters of her mother . . . [illegible] her cousins include Faith Thoron, Mrs. Thomas Ham (Fanny Curtis) who will celebrate her first wedding anniversary in about ten days, Sturgis and Roger Warner, Jr., [illegible] and Greely Curtis, Jr. . . .

[illegible] son of Mr. and Mrs. James Henry [illegible] of Wilton, N. H. . . . He graduated [illegible] College in 1930 and from General [illegible] in 1933 . . . He will take his bride to [illegible] his duties at St. David's Church on [illegible] . . .

Cecilian Guild Completes Plans for Somerset Dance

Committees Are Busy

CORONATION chats and mercury readings didn't interest Boston as much yesterday as discussions of spring supper dances. And what soirees they are going to be.

Cecilian Guild forgot its layettes and milk funds [illegible] yesterday at [illegible] and centered its attention on a get-together [illegible] of the Hotel Somerset.

The committee is working under the adroit leadership of Mrs. [illegible] of Newton who has many ideas about [illegible] for supper dances. They [illegible] follow the trend for things royal [illegible] a set of [illegible] with the arms of England's new monarch.

Carole Lombard Shares Honors With March

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Los Angeles, May 5—That complacent smile on David Selznick's face as he entrained out for New York last night was caused by the coup he put over just a few hours previous to his departure.

Louella O. Parsons

His jolly little surprise includes Carole Lombard's and Fredric March's [illegible] she [illegible] to a contract to begin work on [illegible] [illegible] the 20th [illegible] I am particularly [illegible] because William Wellman, who did such a swell job on "A Star Is Born," [illegible] directs this original comedy by Ben Hecht. [illegible] has been urging Freddie to forsake the doublet and hose and do more comedy.

As for Carole, she has been sought after by every studio in town but she actually ends her [illegible] when she begins work for Selznick. I have an idea as soon as she finishes the Hecht yarn she will accept Mervyn LeRoy's offer [illegible] with Fernand Gravet. Commuting East with David were Jock Whitney, Bill Wellman, Ben Hecht and Russell Birdwell.

BOSTON after DARK

GEORGE HOLLAND

"Why, what is this?" gasps the Holland's ever-loving, who is Dot, and she picks up the flimsy like it would bite her.

"I might guess offhand," says George, who is never subtle, "that it is a sort of sample panties. And listen Dot, this is funny. She says, 'I found out one thing in Newark. They don't bury their dead; they send them to the theater.'"

But Dot's thoughts are far away and she is heard to murmur:

"A very cute trick indeed. I wonder how it'd look made up in peach.")

King Battles for Old Throne:

When "Sea Legs," the new legit musical, opens at the Colonial Mon. next, the best known member of the cast will have least billing . . . He's Charlie King, hero of a few years ago, underdog of today, but at the start of a fight back . . . Charlie fell upon bad times and decided w'ot'ell . . . But eventually he took a new grip and started all over again at the bottom . . . Once he was king in position as well as name . . . Back a decade ago, as male lead in "Little Nellie Kelly," he thrilled 'em, singing the theme song and "You Remind Me of My Mother" . . . Again he did it with "Broadway Melody," in the first musical talkie hit . . . He's married to George M. Cohan's niece, a Providence girl . . .

Show Must Go On:

Rather tactless of that mayoralty candidate who walked into a neighborhood theater in the middle of the feature picture . . . Down front a stooge hopped up and yelled, "Here comes ——— ———, folks" . . . Others took up the cry, much like a clacque . . . They had to stop the film, and then the candidate made it worse by climbing to the stage and spouting . . . If he'd stayed he wouldn't have made so many enemies . . . It might have appeared accidental . . . But he left after the harangue—and the boos were loud, like this . . .

Hammer and Hammerhead:

Montgomery Villain

"Night Must Fall," Emlyn Williams' recent London and Broadway stage success and "The Good Old Soak," another stage-hit but of older vintage, will have their first Boston screenings at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters beginning Friday.

The romantic star, Robert Montgomery, co-starred with Boston's Rosalind Russell, will make his film debut as a villain in "Night Must Fall." He is cast as a [illegible] charming pathological killer and his performance is getting rave reviews. That fine actress, Miss Russell, has the diff[illegible] unenviable position of [illegible] man whom she know[illegible]

"NIGHT MUST FALL" HAS BEEN CALLED THE MOST AMAZING PICTURE OF OUR GENERATION... WHY?

Subjects the screen has never dared to touch—roles that actors have never dared to play—all combined by the entertainment genius of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and the production artistry of Hunt Stromberg, producer of "Great Ziegfeld" and "Maytime", to give you a thrill-packed suspense-jammed melodrama unapproached in all the brilliant annals of screen history! Robert Montgomery as a psychopathic thrill-murderer—can you imagine him in so startling a role? . . . Beautiful Rosalind Russell as the woman he drew into his strange web—fascinated by his eager kisses—terrorized by the murder she couldn't help but see in his heart . . . A brilliant cast of screen and stage favorites—each one making this amazing picture more unique, more thrilling, more astounding! For 80 suspense-crowded weeks—almost two whole seasons—New York and London stage audiences marveled at the stage play from which this picture was adapted. Now M-G-M has dared to bring it to the screen—to give thrills beyond number to everyone who sees it! Truly—it is the most daringly different movie the screen has ever known!

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

When Roger came from the dressing room, ready for bed, [illegible] was shaking something from a bottle into her hand, to [illegible] her hair. She shook a bit too vigorously and a drop [illegible] Roger's eye.

"[illegible] My eye!" he yelped.

"[illegible] does it hurt?" Dorothy asked forgetting her plan [illegible].

"[illegible] I shall get used to it [illegible] time."

"[illegible]" said Dorothy in an icy tone that meant she was not [illegible].

[illegible] I shall probably [illegible] about with a [illegible].

[illegible] Beatrice [illegible] lap dog [illegible] If you MUST put [illegible] your hair [illegible].

[illegible] you won't mind [illegible] bed tonight?" [illegible] She put the [illegible] away. "You [illegible] or in any other [illegible] to I really should [illegible] permission to sleep [illegible] this is also your [illegible].

Contrition

[illegible]

"[illegible] Dot [illegible] we have [illegible] now."

"[illegible] as you please."

[illegible]

"You [illegible] don't you?"

"[illegible] very good at [illegible]."

"[illegible] improve with practice."

[illegible] to practice [illegible] struggling [illegible] the right words. Then [illegible] I made a sort of a fool [illegible].

"[illegible] it, Roger?"

"[illegible] what made you think [illegible]."

"I [illegible] ultra mod[illegible] modern women [illegible] reach out [illegible] whatever man they [illegible]."

"[illegible]" he asked.

"[illegible] ultra-moderns. Those [illegible] have been [illegible] brought [illegible] never do [illegible]. [illegible] have the refinement [illegible]."

[illegible] as [illegible] what happened at the [illegible].

"[illegible] Oh come do you ex[illegible]."

"[illegible] come in."

[illegible] But [illegible].

"[illegible] know. Honestly [illegible] I was fighting [illegible]."

"[illegible] there are plenty of [illegible] for you to find [illegible]."

"[illegible] There will not be. Why [illegible] understand[illegible]."

"What do you expect me to do, [illegible] cheers?"

[illegible] getting a [illegible].

"Well what about you and this [illegible] Harris?"

"It Was Different"

[illegible] was entirely different. He really thought I was Dolly [illegible] the woman Muriel wants [illegible] to marry. [illegible] fell in love [illegible] wanted me to tear off [illegible] with him, but I sent him away."

"[illegible] whistle him [illegible] But I tell you, [illegible] in this [illegible]."

"[illegible] perhaps [illegible] I invited [illegible] next Sunday."

"Of [illegible] the outrageous things!"

"I wanted him to see the children."

"[illegible] indecency! [illegible] ideas!"

"He's a thorough gentleman, Roger."

[illegible]

"The funniest thought struck me. We've been married 20 years, haven't we?"

"Nearly 21."

"And this is the first time that either of us has—er—how shall I put it? The first time either of us has ever had an [illegible] isn't it?"

"As far as I am concerned."

"And [illegible] far as I am concerned." He laughed again. "And here we have handed it to each other on a plate as soon as we are together."

"What do you mean?"

"We have confessed."

"But there's nothing to confess."

"I mean have told each other. You look here, Dot." He leaned over to her because she stretched out on the bed again, and his voice became serious. "Do you suppose [illegible] was serious we would have [illegible] told each other all about it?"

[illegible]

"[illegible] I don't suppose [illegible] Roger. But then I know [illegible] Frank's love [illegible] was really never end[illegible] getting the sanctity of your home."

Reconciliation

"Of course not. From the way [illegible] told me, I know that."

"Well."

Roger looked at her and grinned. "Well?" he said.

[illegible] down in bed [illegible].

[illegible] and went over and [illegible]. Then he [illegible] window and drew the [illegible].

"It's a bit chilly out," he said.

"Even though spring did arrive today, we shall have more cold, we always do," Dorothy said.

"But it won't last long."

[illegible] opened the window [illegible] and looked out.

"Whatever are you doing?" Dorothy asked.

"Looking at the sky. Moon's hazy, no stars."

"Showers, no doubt. Garden needs them. Roger, do come to bed."

"Want a drink of water?"

He went to the bathroom and drew [illegible]. "Want some?" he [illegible].

"No, thanks."

He [illegible] and [illegible] by the [illegible].

"Draw the drapes again, Roger."

He stared out of the window.

"Oh Roger, come to bed, will you?"

"Of course, of course."

[illegible]

He heard Dorothy [illegible].

"What's the matter, Dot," he asked.

"I'm beginning to get awfully feminine and idiotic and I'm afraid I'm going to cry."

"No—no nothing to cry about."

[illegible] snapped out the light [illegible] clock tinkled off the midnight hour.

"And so," Dorothy said, "we'll call it a day."

Roger got into bed. He reached [illegible] caressed her.

"Darling!" he [illegible] then [illegible] went about his [illegible].

"Dar-r-r-ling!" she whispered.

THE END

Oxygen Best For Those Gassed

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

RECENTLY a committee appointed to investigate the problem of carbon monoxide poisoning made its report. It is an encouraging report, indicating that the danger has been greatly reduced.

Although this form of poisoning has been known for many years, it is only within recent times that its seriousness has been recognized.

Everyone knows how absolutely [illegible] is the supply of oxygen [illegible] life [illegible]. We all appreciate that without fresh air and adequate supply of oxygen [illegible] be maintained. [illegible] of carbon monoxide in the atmosphere is not understood by all.

MONOXIDE REDUCES OXYGEN

Let me tell you about this [illegible] of less gas which is [illegible]. It is one of the most deadly of all gases known to mankind.

It is found in illuminating and cooking gas, the exhaust of automobiles and the fumes from coal stoves. It is so powerful that breathing in even a small amount of it may prove serious.

It is dangerous because it combines with the hemoglobin, the coloring matter of the blood, [illegible], reducing the amount of oxygen carried in the body [illegible].

The danger of the absorption of this gas is always present. [illegible] defective coal and gas stoves, gas [illegible], gas [illegible] appliances [illegible].

[illegible] the most common source of this gas is the exhaust of the automobile. This danger is ever present when the motor is left running while the doors of the garage are left closed.

Sometimes the gas is taken in small quantities. Then the victim complains of a dull headache and an inability to continue with his work. This type of poisoning is frequently met in workshops and other places where ventilation is [illegible].

[illegible]

When these symptoms occur expert medical attention is needed. A doctor or an ambulance should be summoned at once. If possible to get it, the administration of oxygen is of [illegible].

Want to Look, Feel Young? Keep Waistline Slim

By Ida Jean Kain

THERE is a limit to your waistline—twenty-five inches of waist to five feet of height, one-half inch more waist for every additional inch of height, and any more waist is too much for symmetry.

Moreover, excess waistline inches have a cruel way of adding years to the appearance. The young figure is flexible and slim with the waistline clearly defined. The old figure owes its age not so much to padded shoulders and heavy hips as to a bulging waistline.

When [illegible] begins to expand [illegible] activity [illegible] that you are getting old. You can't expect to have a youthful figure [illegible] the exercise [illegible] youthful figures [illegible] have to twist, bend and stretch to keep [illegible].

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Most Men Will Run Away When Young Women Pursue Them

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

In a recent article in your column you advise girls not to be cheap. Please let me add a further bit of advice to yours.

I loved a girl devotedly and expected to make her my wife, till she made us both ridiculous. Three or four times during the day she would call me up at my office and expect me to hold lovey-dovey conversations under the scowling eyes of the boss. She would meet me for lunch and expect me to stay out longer than the thirty minutes I was allowed.

Finally it got to the point where this girl became worse than a case of scarlet fever, which would have been preferable. I tried to break our engagement, as a gentleman should, and tell her that I no longer cared for her.

She would not accept this, so I disappeared. I went to another city and started to work for an infinitely smaller sum.

But I felt my escape was cheap at the price. As you said in your article, any man will run if pursued. LUCKY JOHN.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

One can't help but feel sorry for a girl who wears her heart on her sleeve, to the extent of making both herself and her fiance ridiculous.

Let's hope she has learned her lesson, which seems the only thing left to hope for.

Here are other interesting letters and answers:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

In this day and age I wonder if any other girl in the United States was ever brought up with the same wrong background as mine.

I was the plaything, a nice little doll, for a rather elderly mother and her two more elderly maiden sisters.

From the time I could walk I had Victorian absurdities pumped into me and, romantic young idiot that I was, I expected Prince Charming to present himself and carry me off in a cloud of romance.

I was never allowed to go to parties, mingle with other girls and boys in the high school, or learn how to be self-supporting.

The last of the aunts died six months ago, and I have a small income, just about enough on which to get along.

But what can a woman of 34 really do with herself, when she's had no business or professional training, and marriage now seems out of the question?

CYNTHIA.

DEAR CYNTHIA

In the first place, please be devoutly thankful for the small income, which will help you to prepare yourself for a more interesting life. Get the best financial advice and guard every penny of it.

For an untrained woman of 34 who is financially independent occupies a vastly different position from a woman of the same age and condition who is not financially independent.

Get away from the small suburb from which you write me, and take up living quarters in a college settlement, a good girls' club or the Y. W. C. A.

Then take up something which interests you and which will help you to enter some business or profession.

And in this day and age please don't talk about opportunities being over at 34.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My best girl friend has a bad reputation, in spite of which I am fond of her and think I can help her to do better. I believe this is no time for me, her closest girl friend, to drop her, although my mother has forbidden me to bring her to our home.

When I go with this girl I have to lie about it, and when I arrive home I'm scolded.

I want to leave home and go to work, so that I can entertain these friends and others of whom my mother disapproves.

My mother claims she will send the law after me, because in our state I'm supposed to be of school age. Can she do this?

H.

DEAR CHILD:

I sincerely hope, that you are not going to bring your defense of these friends to a showdown with your mother. And while I admire your loyalty, it is certainly the part of worldly wisdom not to put it to the test you are considering.

You are willing to break with your family to help a girl who evidently doesn't care about helping herself.

You're still in school, which is the best place for a girl of your age to be. A false step now may spoil your entire career.

Please don't take the bit in your teeth and bolt away from home looking for a job.

[illegible]

This mask can be used time and time again [illegible] before dinner, in the bath whenever you have leisure during the day. It is easily adjusted and, while it covers the face completely, it has "slits" just large enough for the eyes, nose and mouth.

It also has an adjustable "nose-piece" that fits directly over the bridge of the nose and under the eyes. Thus wrinkles, crowsfeet and puffings about the eyes are [illegible].

[illegible] goes on [illegible] this week. [illegible] it has been successfully used in exclusive European beauty salons for some time. Never, however, has it been possible to purchase it for home use before.

Nerves on Edge?

Molly's nerves are seething inside. She's almost reached the breaking point.

To add to her troubles she finds that Wally, instead of sympathizing with her, seeks the company of placid Joan.

Of course Wally prefers Joan's serene manner to your hornet's-nest restlessness, Molly. But remember Joan's calmness refreshing as it may be, is her only charm.

Nervous troubles are increasing in our swift-paced age. More and more people are afflicted with sleeplessness, worry, dizziness, nervous indigestion, irritability and other nervous conditions. But scientific knowledge of treating "nerves" has increased, too. Doctors find that the cure is not repression but release of nervous energies.

Our 40-page booklet, "How to Avoid and Overcome Nervous Troubles," tells how to release your nervous energies in the right direction. It's written by a famous physician-psychologist who understands your nervous problems.

We All Need Sugar

FROM MARTHA LEE'S WEDNESDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX.

DO you know your sugars? Sugar is a food that has ways entirely its own. A good cook must be familiar with them if she is to have complete success.

Each and every kind of sugar has its own particular place in cookery. This is particularly well worth remembering during the coming summer months when we are serving fresh fruits, cold drinks and light desserts, as well as doing preserving.

Household sugar is made from sugar cane and sugar beets. We find many varieties of cane sugar. Let us designate them as white refined varieties and brown refined varieties.

Considering the white group we find granulated sugar for preserving, cooking, baking and candy making. Then we have the crystal tablets for serving with hot coffee and tea. Superfine powdered sugar gives best results for [illegible] hot chocolate desserts and [illegible] drinks. And of course we must use confectioners sugar for making quick uncooked cake icings.

Brown refined sugar is made from sugar cane but cannot be made from the beet. Old fashioned dark brown sugar is especially good for gingerbread, baked ham, baked apples, baked beans and candied sweet potatoes. Yellow or light brown sugar has a more delicate flavor and is suitable for coffee cake, sugar cookies, bread pudding and [illegible].

No doubt many of you have noticed that some of the very old English recipes call for "barley sugar." Well, "barley sugar" is made by heating granulated sugar in a saucepan over a slow fire until it turns into a clear liquid.

We offer some recipes that are seasonable and which call for sugar in some form. These are tested recipes which are well worth trying and are quite unusual.

COCOANUT WAFERS

¼ cup granulated sugar
⅓ cup water
2 cups shredded cocoanut
3½ cups confectioners sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla or orange extract

Dissolve the granulated sugar in the water. Reserve one-half of the cocoanut and [illegible] with the sweetened water. And the [illegible] sugar to moisten [illegible] in the favoring [illegible] very thoroughly. Take out in half spoonfuls, form in marble shape, then flatten. Put on waxed paper. Sprinkle top with dry cocoanut and let stand 5 hours to dry. This makes about 3 dozen wafers.

ORANGE FILLING

3 large oranges, juice and peel
6 raw carrots, grated
2 cups granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped blanched almonds

Mix orange juice and their thin parings chopped fine with [illegible] pulp of raw carrots. Add sugar, salt and almonds. Cook for one-half hour, stirring frequently to prevent burning or sticking.

This makes an excellent filling for layer cake and it keeps well in small sealed jars.

BUTTERSCOTCH

1 cup yellow sugar
⅓ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon butter

Boil sugar and vinegar to the crack stage. Add butter [illegible] pour into a buttered pan. Mark in squares before it is cold.

South's bidding was on the aggressive side, but not greatly to be censured.

West opened his fourth best heart. The Ace won and a heart was returned, the King winning. Now, in a feeble effort to bluff declarer out of the club finesse, West led a low club. Since the finesse was [illegible] declarer naturally could not be tempted. Dummy's Jack held the trick and the nine of spades was led. East won with the Ace and shifted to the five of diamonds.

At this point I fear a great many players would fall for the [illegible] free finesse of the Jack. This declarer made no such fatal error. He went up with the King on the correct assumption that East would not have jumped up with the spade Ace if he had held small spades as well, finessed against the Jack in West's hand. Dummy's ten holding, the Queen was [illegible] drawn.

The Ace of clubs and a club ruff returned the lead to declarer, who drew West's Jack of trumps and then the carefully preserved diamond Ace provided entry to the established club suit.

Had declarer played the diamond Jack when [illegible] suit was led by East, West would have covered and the play would have [illegible] dummy. Then in order to successfully finesse and draw West's spades, declarer would have had to ruff a club, which would have left no entry in the dummy and would have resulted in declarer's being locked in his own hand with losing diamonds.

Damon Runyon

[illegible] as between [illegible] the [illegible] American news editors [illegible] agreed that the [illegible] is the biggest event [illegible]

The [illegible] of that good old [illegible] We do wish [illegible] for a news [illegible]

the real human interest story of the race.

Miss Mary is Mary Hirsch, the first woman trainer of big time horses [illegible]. She is the daughter of Maxey Hirsch, a famous old-time trainer, who saddled Bold Venture as the Kentucky Derby winner last year. Her brother, Buddy Hirsch, clapped the [illegible] on Columbiana, winner of the first $50,000 Widener Cup in Miami last winter.

Miss Mary is a nice young girl and she has a nice little horse in No Sir. He was a stake winner in Miami and it would be a great thing for Miss Mary and the fair sex in general if he could run down the [illegible] Colonel Matt Winn's famous race. If we seem to be [illegible] the thought that this might happen, it is only because we have a modest wager in what [illegible] the [illegible] book on Miss Mary's horse.

Sensational Sort

Of course there would be some human interest in a victory by War Admiral, too. War Admiral [illegible] the last son of America's all time greatest race horse, Man O' War, that will ever go in the Kentucky Derby.

Man O' War, the golden horse, is now peacefully browsing in a pasture down in the Blue Grass. He is 20 years old, an equine age that approximates about 80 in human beings, so we are told, and [illegible] 80 our human sires usually quit sending sons to the races.

Old Man O' War never ran in the Kentucky Derby himself, and only one of his sons ever won it, if memory serves, a mud walloper called Clyde Van Dusen. So the sports writers think it would furnish them a [illegible] sentimental sort of lead if War Admiral could win, because they could get in all those cracks about the old fellow listening for the far off beat of hooves and all that sort of business.

Still, we think it would be much nicer to see Miss Mary down there in the winner's ring, seeing her horse draped with flowers and hearing those [illegible] phrases of congratulations from the silvery tongue of some gallant Kentucky [illegible] of fast horses, [illegible] women and, of course, good liquor.

Horse Sense

Still, we could do the same thing if we knew just what War Admiral will be thinking next Saturday. War Admiral [illegible] Mr. Sam Riddle [illegible]

We once asked Mr. Hirsch Jacobs, the leading American trainer, what he thought a horse of the [illegible] of Round Table was thinking of as an assistant starter [illegible]

"I don't know," confessed Mr. Jacobs. "I only hope he's thinking of getting down there in front."

[illegible] we hope War Admiral will be thinking of Saturday, but we wish we might be sure. It would have a material bearing on our wagering.

Confidence Sags

We informed the readers of this column some weeks ago that War Admiral would win the Kentucky Derby. [illegible] confidence has been shaken since then by the fact that [illegible]

At the time we picked War Admiral he had [illegible] this year, and we [illegible] Afterwards, however, War Admiral [illegible] Miss Mary's horse. We would hate to see Miss Mary [illegible] always [illegible] that would be

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

is "Going to Town"

AND THE TOWN IS GOING TO SOLVENIZED

Solvenized went to town in a big way when it was introduced to New England in JENNEY Hy-Power and Aero gasolines.

Solvenized—the greatest development in motor fuel—protects motors against hard carbon. Carbon binder is dissolved and the loosened carbon blown from the motor. New harmful carbon formations are checked.

The result is a cleaner motor, renewed power, smoother operation and greatly increased mileage. You'll be amazed at the improved efficiency of your car.

The reception of the new JENNEY Solvenized gasolines was a revelation. The daily sales of many JENNEY Stations have more than doubled, and every station has shown a substantial increase. Thousands of motorists have told us they notice a tremendous improvement in performance.

You, too, will benefit by this outstanding new gasoline. Drive into a JENNEY Station (Solvenized gasoline is sold only at JENNEY Stations) and start using it today. Then watch results.

THIS IS LIFE

BY

Robert E. Rogers

ROBERT E. ROGERS

I [illegible] a colleague of mine, Professor W[illegible] Prince of the English [illegible] of the Massachusetts State College at Amherst, has touched in passing on a little point that has always troubled me a bit and which I have mentioned many a time to my classes. Why do most of the portraits which we see in our text books and elsewhere represent our great men of letters at an advanced age, all covered up with whiskers and giving an impression of advanced senility?"

The result is, that to young people especially, they give the impression that most of the world literature must have been produced by people with one foot in the grave.

[illegible] let me lead off with the ladies. We almost always see Julia Ward Howe as an aged woman with a sweet wrinkled face and a great grandmother's lace cap.

Favorite Example Familiar One of Hugo

The [illegible] young woman who wrote "Mine eyes have seen the glory" is almost never represented [illegible]. And why no picture of George Eliot until she was middle-aged [illegible]? She must have had a [illegible].

My favorite example is the familiar one of Victor Hugo. You know the one, the old fellow with the white scrubbing-brush hair and clipped white beard and the heavy wrinkles on his brow.

There is extant a drawing or painting which shows him as youthful and handsome as Keats or Shelley or Byron, that immortal trio who did [illegible] for the artists to do them dirt—and in much the same manner, luxuriant love [illegible] and a Hollywood shirt-collar. [illegible] the young man looked who wrote "Hernani," not the old boy who wrote "The Man Who Laughs."

Of course the impression has been driven in to generations of young people by that dreadful [illegible] in all public school rooms.

I [illegible] picture one which might have [illegible] "A Year of Poets"—Longfellow, Whittier, [illegible] Whitman and somebody else? [illegible] whiskers blowing in [illegible].

[illegible] some fresh-faced [illegible] apparently had to fight [illegible] Clark Gable side-burns [illegible] Longfellow who was a precise young [illegible] moustache.

Walt Whitman liked to be photographed as a young workingman in his shirt-sleeves [illegible] and shave. He wore suspenders [illegible] and a hat. "Washes and [illegible] For me freckles and a [illegible] beard."

[illegible] Hawthorne before he grew the heavy [illegible] was youthful and handsome.

[illegible] Young Tennyson [illegible] Browning before age withered and custom staled them.

Grew Beards Then Early As Possible

I suppose it was all right in the case of the ancients who were pretty old before they were celebrated enough to rate a statue or a bust.

But apparently in the nineteenth century everybody grew a beard just as early as possible. Swinburne to hide the lack of a nonexistent chin, Thomas Hardy as a young architect with a moustache before he began to look wizened and Mongolian.

But unfortunately we seem to have to think of great men solely in their elderly aspects. Who ever thinks of Cardinal Richelieu as Dumas in "The Three Musketeers" wrote him up as the dashing young military man on horseback? No, it is always the palsied ancient in scarlet robes and the gray moustache and imperial as in "Under the Red Robe" or Bulwer-Lytton's sad melodrama.

Stevenson never changed but then he was young—about forty—when he died. And Oscar Wilde was still young when he went to prison.

And Stephen Crane and Frank Norris still look to us as they did in the days of their genius. But all school-boys will have to remember Theodore Dreiser not as he was then but as the bulky, buck-toothed aging gentleman he is today.

Rupert Brooke was lucky. His portrait was the ideal for immortality, that eager young profile with the world before it. Far better that than to reach the age and appearance of the High Lama in "Lost Horizon."

5 BOYS In Court For BATTLE

OTHERS CHARGE POLICE BRUTAL

Students Post Bonds, Get Trial Delay

With expulsion of some students a possibility, Dean Harold E. Lobdell of Massachusetts Institute of Technology launched a "rigid investigation" today into last night's Tech riot.

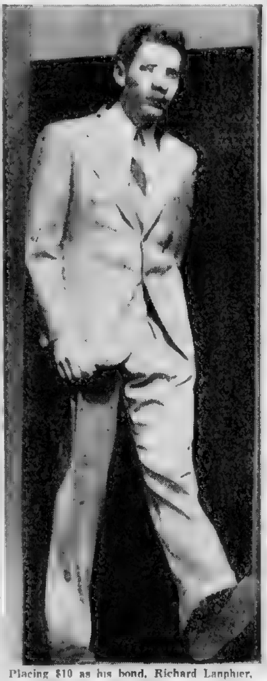
His action followed arraignment of five somewhat shopworn Tech students in East Cambridge court on charges growing out of the disturbance. It came as fellow students were making plans to visit Mayor John D. Lynch of Cambridge in a protest against "police brutality."

The institute has a hard and fast rule that students who participate in unauthorized group demonstrations off the institute grounds lay themselves open to disciplinary action and possible expulsion.

The five students arrested in the riot were considerably chastened when they appeared in court today.

With two large surgical patches on his face, Richard Lanphier, 21, pleaded guilty to loitering, but not guilty to disturbing the peace.

Donald Cole, Jr., 18, of Belmont, grimy and with both sleeves yanked from his shirt, pleaded not guilty to attempting to rescue a prisoner.



Placing $10 as his bond, Richard Lanphier, with surgical patch on his nose, walked out of the East Cambridge court. He'll be heard on coronation day, with other M. I. T. students accused of participating in the Tech riot.

Donald Cole, Jr., of Belmont, M. I. T. student, with a family friend, after he pleaded not guilty of attempting to rescue a prisoner from a Cambridge policeman. Both of his shirt sleeves were yanked out during melee with Cambridge police.

Cases Continued

Andrew Prebort, 20, practically submerged in a huge blue sweater which appeared to have gone through a concrete mixer, pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace and not guilty to loitering.

Roy Prince, Jr., 21, of Washington, D. C., and James Sensfer, 18, of Poughkeepsie, were in better shape than the other three.

While Prince pleaded guilty to disturbance and [illegible] Sensfer pleaded [illegible] to [illegible] of [illegible].

All cases except Prince's were continued to May 12. Prince's went over to June 14 and each was bonded in $10.

Meanwhile, by the other Tech students it was charged that Cambridge and Metropolitan officers needlessly slugged, beat, kicked and manhandled students who were merely making a little noise while celebrating examination post-mortems."

The Tech "indignation group" announced that they would probably be augmented by another group of Harvardians who have a little protest of their own against Cambridge police for "brutality" during the Monday night riot in which 1000 Crimson students engaged.

The M. I. T. students after airing their grievances with Mayor Lynch will proceed to the offices of Eugene C. Hultman, commissioner of the Metropolitan District Commission, and voice a similar protest with him against his officers.

Gas Bombs Used

And this is the aftermath of one of the wildest riots ever recorded in Cambridge college history:

Tear gas shells exploded, clubs cracked skulls, police were faced with flaying student fists, traffic was tied up and general bedlam reigned near M. I. T. for more than an hour while police battled with students.

It all started very innocently, it seems. Some 400 Technology boys filled with the glad tidings that the post-examination period was over started out to snake dance on the campus.

The leader snaked the wildly shouting hordes of white Comanches onto Charles River road. Soon irate autoists were leaning on their horns in an attempt to get through the endless chain.

With whining sirens and grim determination lighting their eyes 30 odd Cambridge minions of the law arrived at the scene in cruising cars.

First they cajoled, then they pleaded, finally they got to the shoving point. Then the fuse of riot was lighted—a punch caught one officer on the jaw and down he went.

A riot call was sent in for aid to the Metropolitan police and hastily drafted squads were brought in from outlying stations to augment the battling police at the scene.

Proxy Marriage Annulled

Now Wants to Wed Her True Love

MARION C. FAUGHT

Another chapter in the elusive romance of pretty Marion C. Faught was written in Suffolk Probate Court today as Judge Frederick J. Dillon dissolved her "proxy" marriage.

In fact, there was no marriage all along, Judge Dillon said, although for more than a month Marion thought she was married to Ira Glenn Mitchell, a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Quincy.

In reality, Marion married his buddy, Andrew J. Rea, who consented to be a proxy bridegroom when Mitchell couldn't get shore leave.

The course of true romance does not run smooth. Marion has found. [illegible] she fell in love with Sailor Mitchell in San Diego, Cal. She was a waitress then and he came in to have lunch. 500,000 Urged to War ON REDS

K. C. WARNED OF PERIL HERE

By ALAN C. FRAZER
Staff Correspondent
Special to the Boston Evening American

Stamford, Ct., May 5—Flinging a challenge at atheistic Communism, Martin H. Carmody, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, in a stirring address here, urged the half a million members of the order into a fight against the Red peril.

Before more than 1000 men and women, gathered for the Golden Jubilee Banquet of St. Augustine Council, Carmody said:

"Today, in his infirmity, Pope Pius XI calls on the people of Christendom to make use of the weapons of enlightenment, that Christianity may be saved from the force of Communism that would destroy all civilization.

"Peace and harmony—this is the heritage which Communism would destroy. This is the heritage for which Charles Martel and the Franks fought at Tours, and which Columbus bequeathed to America, the sacred heritage of faith in God.

"What are we going to do about it? There is only one answer. That we of this generation must assume the same responsibility that those others assumed throughout the centuries.

Hate Abounds

"When today Spain, Russia or Germany is mentioned, there rises before us the picture of persecutions—of restrictions of human rights, of the right to worship God, to preserve the home and the sacredness of family life, of freedom of will and life itself.

"In Spain, the very foundations of order are destroyed with satanic hatred. These forces have there murdered thousands of innocent men and women whose only offense was the dedication of their lives to God.

"Nor can we be blinded to the fact that these destructive forces are not confined to the Old World, or be deceived by specious representations into believing that these same massed forces are not as definitely organized and destructively at work in America today.

"Let us not be deceived as to the activities of these forces in the United States, Canada and elsewhere in the Americas, under whatsoever label they operate.

"In the land of Columbus there is no place for the Communist and the Internationalist, whose doctrine of hate is the most destructive force in the world.

Strikes at Justice

"Disguised in the garments of democracy, it would enter the temples of justice to strike down the blind goddess who holds aloft the scales of even justice for rich and poor, strong and weak, without fear or favor.

"The destructive forces of hate and absolutism must never secure firm lodgment in the western world."

Rev. Bernard Grimley, editor of the Catholic Times of London, England, told the gathering that it was not a civil war in Spain but a war against Communism. Even the Basques, so much now in the spotlight, he said, were two-thirds with the insurgent troops.

In Madrid, according to Father Grimley, 50,000 persons have been massacred by Communists and anarchists, in Barcelona 60,000 and in Valencia 30,000, a total of 140,000, which he declared was a conservative figure.

He placed the number of priests and nuns killed, in the regions occupied by Communists, at more than 15,700 and he told of reported atrocities and branded the "popular front" and the "united front" as anti-God movements.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

BY

Annice Brink

Here's the best modern version of "The Lady or the Tiger?" to date. We will probably never know the ending. Although, admittedly, it's a lot easier to guess than the climax of the original story.

ANNICE BRINK

Last week the president of a mid-western concern with a branch factory in Everett came to Boston on a business trip for the first time. For eleven years practically his sole contact with the business had been made through a representative who covered the New England territory.

The executive looked up his man, only to find he was out of the state, covering a far corner of New England. Loath to wait until he returned, the president decided to visit the Everett plant bright and early the next morning.

He rang for a bellboy and, tossing his things into a bag, asked him to get reservations on a sleeper to Everett.

"Everett?" asked the boy, mystified.

"Yes, Everett," answered the busy executive, over his shoulder.

"Everett, where?" persisted the boy.

"Why, Everett, Massachusetts! I understand I'll get there at eight in the morning." By this time he was beginning to feel a trifle exasperated.

Expense Account Explains Only Too Well

"Well, sir," answered the boy slowly, "if you walk you'll get there early in the morning, all right. But it's only a ten-cent ride by street car!"

In the mind of the astounded president one item stood out, clear and very sharp. It was an expense sheet for fare and sleeper to Everett, Massachusetts from Boston, Massachusetts, handed in regularly by the salesman every week [illegible] dollars a week for eleven years.

Summer has come in overnight and perhaps too suddenly. Yet no one seeing the Public Garden in the morning could quibble about the quick change . . . for water shimmers in the pond, the tulips have, the magnolias are pink and white spotlights and the effulgence over it all is almost too beautiful to bear.

This Goodman does turn the scheme of things upside down.

In New York's Paramount theater they danced in the aisles. In a dance spot here (Nutting's) they didn't dance except in a few cramped corners. For one thing, there was hardly room left to stand. They were content to stand and listen, and a revival-meeting spirit seized them when the rhythm mounted and mounted . . . it's impossible to describe the wave of approving sound that rose and met the music . . . not loud enough to drown a single note.

Half of Harvard was there . . . a sprinkling of the Social Register . . . here and there dancers turned faun and nymph under the magic of Benny Goodman's licorice stick to do Bacchanalian dance figures . . . and nodding to the swing, with his eyes half-closed, the short story writer, authority and connoisseur of hot music who does the "Off the Record" department for Mademoiselle, George Frazier.

What Makes Sunday Evenings Brighter?

Wish things like this would snap up more Sunday evenings; they do send off the week to such a good start: At cocktail time in the Lafayette, a gentleman approached a table and asked brightly, "Well girls, what are you doing tonight?" As quick as that one chirped back "You!"

And in the grey-paneled and crystal chandelier-hung dining room of the hotel one waiter wanted to be sure that everything was up to scratch. In fact, even above and beyond scratch, befitting the dignity of the place. For one thing, his manager was among the people he served at the big oval table.

Taking his stance correctly at the left of one of the young ladies to report a shortage, yea even unto a total lack of the flavor sherbet she'd ordered, he bowed from the waist and stated regretfully and sonorously: "The raspberry has ceased to be!"

Brouillard Plans To Crowd Yarosz | Eager to Meet Steele for Title

By JACK CONWAY

MR. BOSTON

I TALKED WITH Lou Brouillard, former world welterweight and middleweight champion, as he completed his daily training grind at Buckley's Gym in preparation for his ten-round bout with Teddy Yarosz at Mechanics Building on Friday night.

"I weigh 159 pounds," said Brouillard, "and I wish I were fighting Yarosz tonight. I am ready to step now.

"I get impatient waiting for the call to enter the ring. Once in condition, I like to sweep into action and get the bout over."

I asked Brouillard if he had ever seen Yarosz box.

"I was at the ringside in Pittsburgh the night Yarosz won the world middleweight championship by upsetting Vince Dundee," replied Lou.

"He looked liked a good fighter that night. He had to display exceptional boxing ability to outscore Dundee, while he also proved he could hit.

"I plan to keep crowding Yarosz. This is always the way to defeat a boxer."

"What are your plans if you win?" I pressed.

"I would prefer battling Freddy Steele for the world middleweight title," answered Brouillard.

"Steele took the championship from Babe Risko, who had beaten Yarosz. Steele is young and strong, but over the 15-round route I think I would defeat him."

OFFERED BOUT IN ENGLAND

BROUILLARD also mentioned he has an offer to box Jock McAvoy in England.

"Boxing is going very good in England," said Brouillard. "Tommy Farr's victory over Max Baer and Jack Doyle's conquest of King Levinsky have made the English people boxing minded. They now have some real champions to cheer.

"McAvoy is a top middleweight, and would draw a good gate if pitted against me."

"How about fighting Marcel Thil again?" I asked.

Brouillard laughed good naturedly.

"There isn't much chance of ever beating Thil in France," said Lou. "I knocked him out with a punch to the jaw in our last bout, and Marcel got the decision on a foul. He will never lose while he continues to box in France.

"I would like to take on the Frenchman in England or in America. I would guarantee to stop him inside of five heats."

[illegible] also believes he will win from Yarosz in their [illegible] Friday night, but isn't claiming a knockout.

"Nobody is knocking out any of us former champions inside of ten heats," said Lou. "You have to give us ex-title holders credit for experience. We know how to take care of ourselves when we get into tough spots. I'll promise you a good fight. Don't miss it."

VICTORY OVER McLARNIN

BROUILLARD says he got his greatest ring thrill the night he won the world welterweight championship from Young Jack [illegible] Garden.

I [illegible] fight as he defeated Thompson but I [illegible] Ed[illegible]ard's top battle his triumph over [illegible] New York.

[illegible] the waves of popularity at the time, [illegible] regarded as the world's outstanding boxer.

Brouillard stepped into New York and gave McLarnin a [illegible] licking. Asked if he cared to meet Brouillard in a return [illegible] McLarnin was quite frank in stating he didn't think he could overcome Lou's southpaw style.

McLarnin never liked boxers of the Brouillard type who swarm all over the opposition.

GEORGE TO MEET KOVERLY

WHEN ED DON GEORGE makes his first Boston appearance at the Garden a week from Friday night following his world's tour, he will be opposed by K. O. Koverly, one of the current bad men.

George kept active wrestling while campaigning in Australia, New Zealand, France and England, and is in good condition.

Don is only 30 years of age, and with a background rich with wrestling experience has many backers who believe he can regain his lost championship.

[illegible] Sonny, to whom George lost his title in a Boston ring [illegible] ago, will appear in a [illegible] bout on the same card with [illegible] Wright as an opponent.

I met the young Irishman as he was leaving for a bout in New Ha[illegible] He expressed a desire to meet Yvon Robert in a return bout as soon as the title holder gets back into action.

"I have been reading Austen Lake's stories on Ireland," said Danno. "He gave a perfect word picture of County Cork. Austen's articles on Ireland are the best that have ever appeared in an American newspaper. I am looking forward with interest to his interview with Eamon DeValera."

The greatest sports broadcast ever sent out over a local station hit the airwaves for the Night Pink Final dinner at the Club Mayfair. Here are a few of the celebrities who spoke. Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly is at extreme left. Then come Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight champion of the world; Joe Cashman, baseball editor of the Boston Evening American interviewing Jerome "Dizzy" Dean; Vince DiMaggio, Bees' rookie outfielder, and former Governor James M. Curley. Radio scribe, "N. F. T.," was master of ceremonies.

Fourth Place Bees Face Dizzy Dean In Second Tilt

Boston's Bees, basking in the first division sun, neither ask nor want quarter from Jerome "Dizzy" Dean as they battle out the second of the three-game series with the St. Louis Gas House Gang at National League Park today.

There's joy reigning supreme in the vicinity of the Beehive, and the team supporters see in His Excellency Dean just one more obstacle to be brushed aside on the upward climb to 1937 fame.

It's seven out of the last nine games for the Bees as they take to today's field.

It's a team hitting on high, fielding superbly and getting pitching of the finest order. So that the fans are jokingly, perhaps, but with not a faint trace of earnest[illegible] mention of a pen[illegible] contender in our National League ranks.

The battery today reads Dean versus Jim Turner.

Gets 16 Hits

The "Dizzy" one is after his fourth consecutive victory. He's off to a smart start which, with any fair snakes of a continuing performance, should find him enjoying one of his best years.

Let, however, the Bees continue to hit for Turner the way they did in the opening game of the series behind Rookie Lee Fette when 16 solid, ringing singles blossomed forth from their bats, and Dean with all his wizardry, will have his hands full.

The Swarm swarmed all over Lon Warneke laying down a barrage of 11 bingles in four innings which sounded his sudden demise.

Every Bee made his hit with Elbie Fletcher and Rabbit Warstler leading the procession with three out of four per each.

Fletcher's performances, both at bat and afield, were like heady wine to his many local friends.

He more than vindicated Manager Will McKechnie's faith in him. Bringing his batting average up to .313 for the season, he pushed Buck Jordan deeper into the first base background.

But after all is said and done, Fette, 30-year-old giant who hurled 25 winning efforts for St. Paul a year ago, stood out preeminently.

One Real Hit

One honest to goodness single was all that the mighty Frisch-men could collect off his sparse offerings.

The box score shows a three hit performance. But two of them were flukey at best, one a single off Fette's glove, another a triple by [illegible] Martin which should [illegible] putout, had not Gene Moore misjudged the ball.

Fette, a 6 foot, 2 inch right-hander, who was winning his second game in as many 1937 starts, had the Gas House boys eating out of his hands. With all of their great power, they were hardly able to get the ball out of the infield.

Turner, today's pitcher, made an impressive showing in his one and only appearance of the year.

He turned back the Phillies, allowing them only six hits and showed he had the stuff to take his place regularly on what the critics now term the 'finest hurling staff in the league.'

When the Bees win games 3 to 1 on six hits it makes good reading. But when the Bees maul a quartet of fine moundsmen and bowl over a team like the Cards, favored pennant team 8 to 1, and hang out 16 hits in the bargain, it's a case for screaming headlines.

The Cards are up in runner-up position now because Dean has aided them greatly with his three victories.

But the Bees with their MacFayden, Weir, Bush, Fette and Turner, are getting better all round hurling and now that the team seems to have unearthed a batting streak to fit in with the pitching, may provide Mr. Dean and his pals a very busy afternoon.

'Jack' Wires Regrets At Missing Party

There was just one leading figure who was missed at the Night Pink Final party, and that was John A. Malloy, managing editor of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, who is in California.

"Jack" wired congratulations and said:

Jack Conway
Sports Editor, Boston Evening American

Only very compelling business has prevented me from getting home in time for the Night Pink Final dinner, and I know I'm missing a grand party. It is fitting such a dinner should be held only in Boston, the city where the greatest interest is in healthy sports; which may explain partly why Boston is still the center of the most American community in the country.

JACK MALLOY.

One of the many vaudeville teams that entertained was that of Eddy Jackson, Eddy Mills and Cy Reeves, who are now appearing at the Famous Door.

It was truly "terrific."

There have been parties, but never has Boston witnessed the equal of the Night Pink Final's birthday party that jammed the Club Mayfair in celebration of New England's finest sports extra.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

ANN MARSTERS

Ann Marsters, who crashed into the win column when Play Line won at Narragansett Park yesterday to pay $6.80, is naming ZOIC to win the fifth race at Narragansett Park today, while CHAMBERSBURGER is her choice to come down in front in the eighth race.

ZOIC ran a brilliant race in the $3500 Narragansett Special on opening day, finishing second to Mucho Gusto. Miss Marsters says that race has put ZOIC on edge for today's test.

CHAMBERSBURGER is in excellent form. He won the eighth race last Saturday, and Miss Marsters figures he will repeat today.

Miss Marsters is conducting a novel betting experiment to see if it is possible to beat the races if one is conservative and wagers on only two races a day.

Miss Marsters accepted Walter O'Hara's offer of $1000 under the condition that $500 be donated to the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser at once, and that $500 be used as a betting stake.

The balance of the betting stake at the end of the experiment will also be turned over to the Basket Fund.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS
$2 Win, Zoic, Narragansett 5th.
$2 Win, Chambersburger, Narragansett 8th.
BANKROLL NOW $490.80. DAY'S PLAY $4.

LOU SEEKS Kayo in Bout WITH YAROSZ

Lou Brouillard of Worcester will be gunning for a knockout victory when he clashes with Teddy Yarosz, Pittsburgh's former world middleweight champion, in the ten round feature of the Goodwin A. C. show at Mechanics Building, Friday evening.

Brouillard is teaming over [illegible] that Yarosz has been [illegible] installed a favorite to win and [illegible] battle and the Worcester battler, who also held the middleweight title and before that the welterweight crown, insists he will chase Yarosz out of Mechanics Building.

There is intense interest too in the appearance of Tommy Brouillard, brother of Lou, in the eight round semifinal. Tommy, although boxing but a year, has become an overnight sensation as a puncher and club fighter.

He is pitted against Georgie Martin of the South End, another club fighter, who is making rapid strides to the top since turning pro.

In the six round bouts Salvatore Bartolo of East Boston will clash with Sammy Cardo of East Boston, Pat Foley of Worcester takes on oJe Marciente and aJckie Caparell of Roxbury battles Gaby Paulin of Augusta, Me.

DANNO Wrestles Wright AT GARDEN

Promoter Paul Bowser has signed George (K. O.) Koverly to meet El Don George, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, in his May 14 show at Boston Garden.

Koverly, California's reformed pugilist, is extremely rough and in a match with Steve Casey he sent the Irishman to a hospital.

Koverly, who met Yvon Robert in the first match at the [illegible] last fall, was [illegible] the champion [illegible] and that is why he jumped at the chance of meeting George. The latter has just returned from a successful tour of the world.

Dan O'Mahony, another former world heavyweight king, will appear in the other half of the double windup. He has drawn Rice Wright, 2[illegible] pound Texan, as a foe.

Wright [illegible] will be remembered [illegible] recently gave Steve Casey a tough argument at the Garden. Except for [illegible] match with [illegible] is unbeaten here. Fans believe [illegible] [illegible] thing.

Walberg on Mound As Sox Continue Drive to Top

St. Louis, Mo., May 5—Only one game behind the league leading Yankees and Tigers, Boston's Red Sox sent Rube Walberg against the Browns today in the second game of a series of three. Jim Walkup was scheduled to do the chucking for the home side.

The opening game of the series was featured by the splendid relief pitching of Jack Wilson, picked up on the Coast a few years back by Manager Joe Cronin.

Wilson relieved Wes Ferrell in the fourth inning with the tying run on first and then he sat and held the Browns at bay the rest of the afternoon. The final score was 11-6 in favor of the Sox.

Eighteen hits were contributed by the Boston clan and they would have needed more than that had Ferrell stayed in much longer. During the 3 1-3 innings he worked the prima donna was combed for 10 hits.

Wilson held the Browns down with three hits for the remainder of the game.

The New York State Racing Commission already has begun to lay plans for special racing attractions in connection with the New York World Fair in 1939. The commissioners plan to discuss with the various racing associations around the city the holding of several big races. One suggestion has been to hold one race or a series of races to establish the year's racing champions beyond doubt.

SPORTS Leaders Aid AGAWAM

OFFICIAL STAFF ANNOUNCED

Springfield, May 5—Agawam Park will have the strongest group of officials in its history when the track opens for its third racing season on the 29th of this month.

The two leading sports promoters in western New England—George Mulligan of Waterbury and Homer C. Rainault of Holyoke—were today added to the official family when Mulligan was appointed director of public relations for Connecticut, and Rainault was named to the same position for Massachusetts and New York state.

The lineup and batting order for Agawam Park is as follows: Edward J. Brennan, general manager; "Ty" Shea, racing secretary; Daniel W. Garnett, treasurer; George Brown Jr., chief steward; William H. Ensign of Westfield, associate steward; Wilmer Brinton Jr., associate steward; Dave Egan, publicity director, and the Messrs. Mulligan and Rainault, to complete a group of nine which will set and maintain a high standard for Agawam Park.

Mulligan is one of the most popular sporting men in the entire country.

He has promoted the most extravagant fights in the history of Connecticut, was one of the first to see the possibilities of professional football, was the leading figure in the erection of the famous Hartford Velodrome, and is a great lover of horse flesh.

Rainault is the gentleman who rescued an abandoned gas house from a fate worse than death, bailed out some 24 feet of water and converted it into the famous Valley Arena.

It is the only fight club in America which went through the depression, staged weekly shows and always showed a profit.

Vin Tells True Story Of Brother Joe's Start

Subbed at Short For Galan

(This is the fourth of a series of articles by Vince DiMaggio, Bees' rookie sensation, on how he made the big league grade.)

By VINCE DiMAGGIO

(As told to Joe Cashman)

Here's the real story of how my brother Joe broke into professional ball. The account has been garbled so often, I'm glad of this opportunity to set down the true facts.

The day before the close of the 1932 Coast League season,

AUGIE GALAN

Augie Galan, then our shortstop, asked to be excused from playing the final game in order that he could join a barnstorming troupe which was to sail the next morning for Honolulu to play a series of exhibitions.

Manager "Ike" Caveney told Augie he could get away providing he could find somebody to take his place at shortstop.

Augie knew of nobody he could get, so I volunteered to bring in brother Joe, who was then playing shortstop for a semi-pro club in Frisco.

Caveney agreed. Galan sailed for Hawaii in the morning and I brought Joe in to the Coast League that afternoon.

He played shortstop and showed well enough to be signed up [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible].

That's how Joe broke in.

And here's how he happened to be in my center field berth when the 1933 campaign opened.

Writers with more imagination than reliable information have said that Joe took my job away from me.

That's not correct. I don't say Joe wouldn't have taken the job away from me if we had competed for it. But we never battled for the position.

Joe was shifted to center field because I was unable to play a game that spring and the Seals were greatly in need of outfielders.

The previous fall, after the close of the Coast League season, I had hurt my shoulder in an exhibition game.

When I reported to the Seals the next spring I couldn't throw a ball a foot. So I sat on the bench and lost my job by default. Not, as so often has been written, because Joe beat me in competition.

And I was released by the Seals in June of that year without having played a game, not because Joe was starring in the outfield and I was no longer needed, but because the management felt that my arm ailment couldn't be cured and that my baseball career was ended.

Two weeks after my release in Frisco I was back playing regularly in the Coast League.

The Hollywood club took me on, and three or four treatments by that club's trainer cured my arm trouble.

The wing has never given me a moment's bother since. Anybody who has seen me throw in recent years knows I'm telling the truth about that.

I hung up my highest Coast League bat[illegible] [illegible].

I [illegible] for the [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible].

I never quite reached the .300 mark in any other season on the Coast. The answer: I played in the [illegible] of those years. I've never been a good spring hitter.

There was nothing else wrong with me down South with the Bees. I wasn't [illegible]. I was trying [illegible]. I was [illegible] in my [illegible] spring form. Fortunately, Manager Bob McKechnie had a world of patience with me. Otherwise I wouldn't be here now to write this.

I doubt if any other major league club would have given me such an opportunity. But I wasn't surprised that McKechnie went along with me. I had heard of the [illegible] of his patience [illegible] and I was tickled when I had learned I had been sold to the Bees.

But again I'm getting ahead of my story.

REAPING Reward Bows IN TRIAL

DELLOR TAKES MILE RACE

By WARREN BROWN

Louisville, Ky., May 5 (US)—Kentucky Derby form suffered another setback as Reaping Reward, second choice in the Derby future books, wound up second to J. W. Parrish's Dellor in the one mile "trial" event at Churchill Downs.

Dellor, a 20 to 1 shot in the Derby betting, won by a length with Reaping Reward, the heavy favorite, waiting in the stretch.

[illegible] of Reaping Reward was [illegible] and the [illegible] [illegible] with Reaping Reward as the Milky Way Farm's entry.

Off this race, Military looked as if it might be the real threat for the stable in next Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

The race, run over a slow track, found Reaping Reward getting away in good [illegible] and moving to the [illegible] almost at once.

No Sir, [illegible] by Mary Hirsch, was the first serious challenger of Reaping Reward, and the Milky Way colt [illegible].

Coming into the stretch, Dellor, having been away [illegible] start, had improved his position [illegible].

For Derby purposes Reaping Reward's race might be judged satisfactory.

The mile, run in 1:38 1-5 over a slow track, was Reaping Reward's first outing for 1937, and the [illegible] between now and Saturday [illegible] that the [illegible] was [illegible].

The result of the trial [illegible] War Admiral, the [illegible] future book favorite, as the [illegible] of 20 possible starters in the Derby which hasn't been beaten in a race this year.

Columbia, Last in 1936, 1937 Heptagonal Choice

Ben Johnson Good For 10 Points

Track and field [illegible].

[illegible] Harvard athletes [illegible] points and Columbia [illegible] in seventh place with 11 2-3.

When the seven Ivy colleges meet again in the Stadium Saturday, Harvard [illegible] sixth place [illegible] and Columbia will be [illegible] in what [illegible] the most bitterly contested [illegible] in an eastern meet in years.

Columbia has regained ten points [illegible] Johnson, its great colored sprinter, who is [illegible] the New York [illegible] already having sailed away [illegible] Indoor Intercollegiate crown.

The efforts of the [illegible].

As track and field [illegible] sharpen, their [illegible] sheets, numerous [illegible].

Can Johnny Donovan of Lawrence and Dartmouth, intercollegiate low hurdle champion, beat back Ham Hucker, the 1935 champion returning to the track this year, and Johnny Irwin, the great Princeton hurdler?

Will Herbert Weast, the Columbia sprinter who ran second to Johnson a week ago, show the form that enabled him to break the world record for 100 meters indoors last January? If so, Columbia is almost unbeatable.

Can Princeton double Peter Bradley, its great mile and half miler? If so, will Jack Mackley double the brilliant Johnny Mead in the same two events?

Will Herbert Cornell, intercollegiate two mile champion, turn back the Yale captain and star two miler, Wilbur Woodland, who hasn't beaten Cornell since the Indoor Intercollegiates of 1936 but is now reported back in form?

Can Tony Gentowicz, the Dartmouth intercollegiate outdoor shot put champion of 1935 and 1936, come back against the Columbia sophomores, Danny Taylor and Francis Ryan, to take the shot put honors, with a 50 foot put likely good only for a third place?

Will Harvard's Bob Haydock, potential 6 foot 4 inch jumper, win his first major crown against the intercollegiate champion, Jim Dillingham of Columbia?

Will the Stadium see a 14 foot vault from Bill Harding of Yale, Standish Medina of Princeton and Dick Ganslen of Columbia, all present or former intercollegiate champions?

Will John Harvard Castle of Yale, after a succession of mediocre hammer throw performances, regain the form which found him out over 163 feet three times a year ago?

These and countless other questions are of vital interest to [illegible] who see Princeton, Cornell, Dartmouth and Yale capable of gathering 40 points apiece in the stadium competition.

Columbia doubtless will be the favored team, but there is good reason for each of the other teams to visualize their success to the heptagonal track and field crown vacated by Harvard when graduation last June took Milt Green, Norman Cahners, Bob Ha[illegible] and others out of the Crimson competitive field.

Green took three firsts for Harvard a year ago, and were the Brookline boy available on Saturday, the Crimson might be a very strong contender for a [illegible].

As it is, the Harvard [illegible] strength of its foremost [illegible] may be a decisive factor in the meet by cutting in on [illegible] rivals.

EXPECTS 2,000,000G.M. OUTPUT

KNUDSEN TELLS OF PLANS

Detroit, May 5 (INS)—Predicting a 2,000,000-car year for General Motors in 1937, and at least an equal output for 1938, William S. Knudsen, new president of the world's biggest motor car corporation, today was working to establish a work year of 46. 40-hour weeks for GM's 235,000 workers.

Knudsen revealed that as his [illegible] first interview since [illegible] president of the far-[illegible] GM empire.

HANEY ON ECONOMICS

World's Production OF GOLD LEAPS 80 Pct. Above 1929

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, May 5—The report just issued at Basle, Switzerland, by the Bank of International Settlements, is unusually interesting on account of the light it throws upon the gold problem—our gold problem.

Naturally, there are many important points in the report. For example, there is the timely warning against unproductive expenditures for "emergency relief" and for "rearmament."

We are virtually told that by these wasteful and demoralizing political devices collectivism is taking civilization for a ride!

The feeble arguments that such spending is necessary are dismissed. We are on the upgrade in a cycle and no stimulus is needed. By drawing on credit for non-productive purposes we are retarding recovery.

The report proposes as remedies the reduction of barriers to international trade and the establishment of a stable international currency system. Some alleviation of the international debt burden is suggested.

The outstanding feature, however, is the discussion of the gold problem.

This problem is dealt with as centering on the rapidly growing world production of gold. It used to be that the total annual addition to the world's monetary stock of gold was smaller than the growth of population. This was one of the chief reasons for the stability of value shown by gold, which fitted in so well as a standard for deferred payments. But in 1936 the world production, at 35,000,000 ounces, was 80 per cent above the 1929 production and the report anticipates a further increase.

The situation is made worse by the cessation of demand for hoarding in the Orient and the reduced consumption in industry and the arts. The result is that a "gold inflation" is threatened And worse than that, there is the possibility that the suitability of gold as a monetary standard may be impaired, at least temporarily. A metal, the supply of which changes so rapidly, can hardly possess the stability of value that is essential in a good standard

What remedy does the bank suggest? World control over gold production. This would involve quotas and restriction of output in many lands

This proposal, I think, is thoroughly indefensible, for the following reasons:

(1) One of the strongest arguments for an objective standard of value is that it should be something which is produced under the control of freely working economic forces. The standard should be some substance which is governed by automatic supply and demand conditions, so that its value will be related to all economic values

(2) The fact is that the proposed control over gold production involves a sort of managed currency.

(3) The only logical remedy is to remove the cause of the evil This cause is so clear and so powerful that there is no excuse for not attacking it, and no hope of a remedy while it operates It is the wasteful spending of governments which leads first to insolvency, and then to "devaluation."

The immediate reason why India has dehoarded her gold and gold mines all over the world have opened up is that currencies have been "devalued" in foreign exchange while their domestic purchasing powers have been maintained by "currency management." This gives an artificial stimulus to produce and dehoard gold

For example, our policy of paying $35 an ounce for all gold is such a stimulus. Foreigners can get more for gold by selling it for paper dollars than they can in any other way.

Thus the real remedies are, first, a balancing of government budgets by reducing spending; and, second, a revaluation of currencies which are undervalued, as is the dollar.

This would involve a great reduction in unsecured note issues, such as the fiduciary circulation in England and the Federal Reserve notes in our country. We would use more gold certificates.

We can re-establish normal conditions and restore stability to gold only by returning to a bona fide gold standard and by increasing the use of money for productive purposes—including foreign trade.

For the present, I can see little probability that the remedies will be applied. It looks as if we will go ahead spending until, in this country, paper dollars have depreciated to a point where an ounce of gold is really worth 35 of them.

Treasury Bills' Levels Steady

Treasury bills sold this week at about the same levels as those sold in the preceding week, it was indicated in treasury department announcement on its weekly [illegible] offering.

Accepted bids for the 273-day issue had an average rate of about 0.738 per cent a year on a bank discount basis while the average discount rate for 135-day bills was about 0.[illegible] per cent

The treasury accepted $50,045,000 of the $1[illegible] tenders for the shorter term bills and $50,014,000 of the $1[illegible] tendered for 273-day bills.

A week ago the bills sold to mature at the time of September tax collections had an average rate of 0.[illegible] per cent and the 273-day bills had an average rate of 0.715 per cent

FEAR Over Money CONTROL

CONFLICT OF AIMS

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1937, Universal Service

New York, May 5—Nervousness in financial quarters springs in large measure from uncertainty as to the direction in which eminent manipulators at Washington intend to go.

The artificial elements injected into the economic structure by the official "money managers" is analogous to the effects of price raising activities by a speculative pool.

Only this time, the controls are Yet official Washington still con-

The apprehension comes from evidence that the single minded price-raising objective has been partially changed. Official Washington now frowns on unduly rapid price advances, speculation, and monopoly operated on a world wide scale tributes to price raising factors through perpetuating the federal deficit, through buying the whole world's [illegible] offerings at the pegged price of $35 an ounce through deliberate efforts to keep credit cheap, and through competing with private employers for workers

Incidentally, hammering down prices while the quotation for foreign gold is held up tends to promote further [illegible] acquisition of American assets

"INSIDE INFORMATION"

In private affairs, financiers sometimes fall into the trap of overvaluing special "inside information" overlooking the obvious significance of fundamentals as revealed by current bookkeeping

The money managers [illegible] subject to the same potential hazard It is dangerous for them to lay too much stress on unpublished information as to the wishes of the British treasury or of any other agency

Discouragement of the movement for a hard count of the unemployed seems a backward step

The real need is for a fundamental census based on scientific definitions which can be kept up to date currently through regular, periodic bookkeeping

Incidentally a mere quantitative survey is not enough

The quality of the unutilized personnel resources of the nation should also be thoroughly explored and systematically catalogued

Specifically, there appear to be at many centers a growing shortage of skilled workers

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

To the extent that untrained unemployed workers are physically and mentally capable of being fitted for the needs of the market through vocational training this humane reclamation should be forthwith undertaken

This is not a problem for government alone, although the administration could well take the leadership in supplying reliable factual information and in summoning a conference of interested groups including employers and labor unions

The present shortage will be enormously intensified when and if home building, railway equipment, shipbuilding and other depressed trades begin to rise to a volume of activity properly related to existing potential demand for such capital goods

As long as existing contradictions and inconsistencies remain, speculation—perhaps a two way speculation—will tend to be promoted rather than retarded

SPECULATION BARRIER

In the face of existing laws the chief barrier to speculation which could be erected would be gradually making bank credit available for speculation

Short of this verbal onslaught against the price [illegible] likely to be short lived in their influence

Meantime the constructive effects of attempting to sit on the bulge should not be overlooked In a free economy, a psychological tendency toward over-optimism frequently builds up serious difficulties

However, it remains to be seen whether policies that worry private executives and investors constitute an "ideal" technique for stabilizing the economy

Airline Merger Is Held Legal

TRUSTEESHIP Plus...

Whether created by will or by agreement, a Trust is a written plan for

1. The Protection of Property.
   The legal safeguards of Trusteeship protect property against dissipation of principal.
2. The Management of Property.
   The creation of a Trust delegates the management of property to a Trustee.

The successful operation of any Trust depends upon the investment ability and skill of the Trustee. The mere fact that property is "in Trust" does not in itself insure competent management.

The final responsibility of obtaining competent management rests with the person who makes the Trust. He should make sure that the Trustee he selects is thoroughly qualified to act for him.

If you are considering placing property in Trust there is information in our booklet, "Wills and Trusts," which will be helpful to you in determining the qualifications of the competent Trustee. A copy will be sent to you promptly upon request.

GOLD POLICY

British BUYING Metal

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

London at last supplies tangible denials of impending changes in its gold policy, instead of leaving the matter of downing rumor mongers entirely to Washington.

Which is only right in view of the fact that all the trouble which resulted in sweeping declines in world markets started there.

Even then the obtaining of information by the House of Commons was a difficult matter. But questioners persevered, judging by the cables, and Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain denied any change in the gold policy is contemplated. In fact it was brought out that the British Treasury buys gold when necessary and is keeping in touch with Washington.

The alacrity with which the English market responded to Chamberlain's comment indicated once again that the best reassurance for home markets comes from home leaders. At the same time the effect of reports that settlement day would pass without disturbing results did its part to bolster English prices. Cables from London indicate there is a growing belief wealthy stock exchange houses have formed a pool to aid smaller firms that might otherwise find themselves embarrassed in settling their accounts. All in all it seems to this writer that conditions abroad are more favorable than in many weeks.

A technical sidelight on the London market that may prove of interest to readers is the recent behavior of the Financial Times averages. While the industrials sank to a new low last week the rails stubbornly held their ground and refused to penetrate the low set in early March.

The stock market is completing its technical rally. While some groups look very attractive on the tape along with individual stocks we do not think this the time to institute a buying program. For our part it is always next to impossible to judge a market by a rally. The real test comes when a secondary decline puts in an appearance. Then the manner in which prices stand up under follow up selling clearly reveals the directions in which traders and investors will find their best opportunities.

At this writing we are interested in watching rails, oils and artificial silk stocks. All three brackets stood up under previous selling in good shape; they have rallied in satisfactory fashion and now only need to hold their ground to convince us buying of them is in order.

Notebook: The Lone Star Cement Company is said to enjoy a much better profit margin on its foreign business than it does on its domestic trade . . . In fact we are told the profit per barrel is about seven times as great . . . United States mills of the company are operating around 40 per cent of capacity, but foreign mills are operating at 75 per cent . . A large part of the company's net comes from Brazil and Argentina . . . And it is far from dependent on government financed projects at home. . Last year only 10 per cent of its shipments went to federal works.

STOCKS Drift LOWER

TRADING AT SLOW PACE

New York, May 5—Traders felt their way cautiously today and the stock market drifted a little lower in lethargic dealings.

Toward the fifth hour the tape was sluggish, with long waits between transactions.

Steels, coppers and motors were the first to slip. A few utilities and specialties held their own, but even these lacked vigor.

Cheerful corporation statements and favorable dividends were still a supporting influence for individual issues. Bonds improved along with principal commodity futures.

Shares in arrears the greater part of the session included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, General Motors, Allis Chalmers, Chrysler, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, American Smelting, International Nickel, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Macy, Douglas Aircraft, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Mack Trucks, Seaboard Oil, Skelly Oil, Phelps Dodge, St. Joseph Lead, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Western Union and Public Service of N. J.

National Supply got up about 2 points to a new year's top, but retreated later. Union Bag was up on a bright March quarter profits report. Holding fairly well were container Corp., General Electric, Shell Union Oil, North American and American Water works.

Timely Topics

Holders of the steels studied the mid-week survey of "Iron Age" which said that, while new business for the mills continues to taper off, the decline is moderate and the outlook for the remainder of this quarter and the succeeding three months is promising.

On the cloudy side of the industry, the magazine added, were threats of strikes against two of the large independent companies. It also was pointed out the slide in scrap prices has not been checked, with supplies coming out freely and most steel makers indifferent because of their large stocks.

The recent friendlier attitude toward the utilities was reflected in the report of the Edison Electric Institute for the week ended May 1, disclosing a contra-seasonal upturn in power production.

The French franc was off .01⅞ of a cent at 4.48 cents at the start of foreign exchange transactions. Sterling was unchanged at $4.93⅞.

Kerr New Head Of Lehigh Valley

Philadelphia, May 5 (AP)—President E. E. Loomis of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, was elected chairman of the board today and was succeeded in the presidency by D. J. Kerr, New York, who was assistant to the president.

Loomis also will be chairman of the executive and finance committee. Loomis had been president of theh company since 1917, when he succeeded E. B. Thomas.

The changes were announced after the regular board meeting held at the offices here.

Bigelow Sanford

Bigelow Sanford Carpet Co. Inc., declared regular quarterly preferred dividend of $1.50 a share, and an interim dividend on the common stock of 75 cents, both payable June 1 to stock of record May 17.

Comments of Brokers

Even if we assume that the market is merely staging a rally after a very sharp break, the recovery could go further, in my opinion.—J. S. Wilson—Josephthal & Co.

The first of a series of minor interruptions before the market moves decisively into the 178-182 area of the Dow-Jones industrial average, seems likely to occur during the late trading today, or early Thursday.—J. E. Molloy—Hornblower & Weeks.

Some caution is still advised as to speculative commitments, although institutional bonds appear to have a steady outlook no matter what happens in London.—F. H. Richardson—Southgate & Co.

Would expect irregularity to become more pronounced in early future and would wait for satisfactory market performance on a secondary sell-off in order to prove solidity of last week's reaction lows.—H. D. Comer—Paine, Webber & Co.

We believe it may be well to await a secondary dip before adding to intermediate swing commitments. Meanwhile, we feel that longer term holdings need not be disturbed.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Trading profits should be accepted if more active bulge is experienced.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

STOCK Settlement DAY

SPECULATORS MUST PAY

New York, May 5 (AP)—Speculators who burned their fingers in the last fortnight's shakeout in London markets must pay up tomorrow, and traders in world capitals are facing the accounting with some uneasiness.

A few days ago it was feared some London houses might be unable to meet "settlement day" without suspension, but advices to banks and brokers here today indicated the danger was largely past, although severe losses must be absorbed.

Some estimates placed the depreciation in securities as high as £30,000,000 (about $150,000,000). Under the London Stock Exchange rules, securities sold or bought during the past two weeks must be delivered and paid for tomorrow, or "contangoed"; that is, carried forward to the next settlement at the end of the month.

In the United States delivery and payment must be made within two days after the transaction. In London, accounts are reckoned twice monthly and brokers and jobbers generally are willing to carry customers over past one settlement to the next for a fee.

"Setlement day" is really four days. On the first and second arrangements are made for "contangoing"—the term is a slang adaptation of the word continuing. If the stocks have been sold, and for any reason the seller cannot buy or borrow the necessary shares, he tries to arrange with his broker for "backwardation," or delay for a fortnight.

When shares are hard to get, traders often must pay high fees for this service.

The third day of the settlement is known as "ticket day," when routine operations, such as the filling in of names on stock certificates, are carried out. The fourth is "par day," when stocks must be delivered and payments made.

'Carry Over'

At the height of the recent speculation in such commodities as rubber, non-ferrous metals, cotton and grains, London banks, some said at the instance of the government, tightened up on loans to brokers, and they in turn restricted "carry over" facilities to their customers.

Many speculators were forced to liquidate holdings to meet their obligations and stocks were sold in most of the world capitals to provide cash. Staples and shares dropped precipitously and traders who had been pinched called for help.

One big London house specializing in "Kaffirs," South American shares, was forced out of business, but a pool was formed to take over its assets and avoid bankruptcy. A small American bank in Paris that had been financing speculative transactions, was sent into the hands of a "friendly" liquidator.

Fears that London houses might be in difficulties as settlement day approached caused a rush to repatriate French and other continentals. The market slump was stemmed, however, prices rose in the London Stock Exchange and in the Paris and New York markets and London financiers expressed the belief that settlement would be made tomorrow with little difficulty.

FORBES TELLS:

How Long TRADE RISES Last

By B. C. FORBES

How long do periods of improving business usually last?

Seldom more than five years.

That is the pronouncement of the board of directors of the Bank for International Settlements. This institution, located in Switzerland, has easily the most influential directorate in the world. Its members are heads of Europe's principal central (usually governmental) banks, with a private representative from the United States.

Any statement sponsored by such heavyweights makes a worldwide impression. In their annual report this week they say:

"Since the turning-point in 1932, five years have now passed, and in the history of business cycles the duration of an upward trend for a period longer than five years has been a very rare occurrence. The records of Britain furnish no examples of past improvement in business continuing uninterruptedly for more than five years and in other countries only a few isolated instances may be found."

* * *

Let it be immediately added, however, that these same authorities declare that recovery did not start in the United States until 1934.

On this basis, revival here could continue until 1939 without running counter to precedent.

But the fact is that recovery began to manifest itself here in 1932, then sustained a very severe jolt between the time Franklin D. Roosevelt was chosen President and took office in March, 1933.

Recovery again set in shortly thereafter.

So, it is hardly accurate to figure that the upward movement here did not start until 1934.

What is the prevailing opinion in high circles regarding the probable duration of the current recovery?

Many men of affairs reason that there may be a moderate let-down before summer ends. But that the fall will witness renewed economic progress on a very substantial scale. They are hopeful that betterment will last throughout 1938 and into 1939.

Others question whether stocks have not already passed their recovery peak and whether any notable measure of further industrial expansion will be experienced.

It is because of this latter analysis that the security markets have suffered relapse. The main argument adduced is that Washington is discouraging the development of further prosperity. The persistent unloading of government bonds by leading banks is regarded as ominous. Our federal finances are exciting widespread apprehension.

Moreover, the administration's attitude towards labor lawlessness is poignantly deplored. So is President Roosevelt's attitude towards business.

Quite lately, a new hope is expressed here and there, namely, that Congress will rebel against White House dictation, against unbridled spending, against the President's Supreme Court designs, against other activities calculated to throttle prosperity and employment. It is admitted, however, that thus far Congress has exhibited very meager independence.

My own contacts with the employing classes have convinced me for several months that caution has been preferred to courage, that fresh capital expenditures are being restricted, that wealthy individual as well as institutional investors have been acting conservatively not daringly.

This board of powerful international bankers strongly emphasizes that abnormal war preparations have been stimulating activity. "It has been calculated," they state, "that world armaments expenditure in 1936 was three times as high as in 1913 and more than twice as high as in the years from 1924 to 1934," while still heavier orders have been placed.

Incidentally, an indirect dig is taken at the United States for continuing to pay an artificially high price for gold. Gold production (35,254,000 ounces) last year broke all records, as did the increase (more than 4,300,000 ounces) for one year.

Nobody—outside of Washington—can fathom why the U. S. government should choose to go deeper and deeper into debt to swell its already ridiculously mountainous stock of idle yellow metal.

Directors of Lincoln Stores, Inc., declared regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 per share on the preferred stock and 25 cents on the common, both payable June 1 to stock of record May 24.

Science Reveals New Danger-Proof Birth Method

By G. B. LAL

(Universal Service Science Writer and Co-Winner of the Pulitzer Prize)

(Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service)

New York, May 5 (US)—New methods of danger-proof childbirth, already successful in experiments with animals, have been disclosed by Dr. James A. Reyniers.

As the father of this novel scientific art, fraught with most important medical and biological uses, Dr. Reyniers told of experiments at the laboratory of bacteriology, Notre Dame University, Indiana.

His latest achievement, to be published in forthcoming scientific treatises, is the method of producing particles of the viruses and bacteriophages, which are infectious things consisting of minute bodies, beyond the power of microscopes.

Single germs and other living cells have been produced and nourished by Dr. Reyniers. Thus the purest individual strains of each type have been developed, he said.

Larger animals, such as chickens, guinea pigs, mice and rats, have been similarly brought into existence without any germ contacts.

Professor Reyniers would say nothing about the pure birth of human beings. But he expects soon to produce germs-free monkeys, the animal which is nearest to man, except the anthropoid ape.

The key to the "pure births art" is the use of ingenious machines and apparati. It is the principle of mechanization, so well known in fabricating automobiles, as applied to living and semi-living things.

Stowaway, Fleeing Ship Drowns in N Y

New York, May 5 (INS)—Faced with arrest and deportation to his native France, an unidentified stowaway gambled with death in the icy waters of New York harbor today—and lost.

Four policemen risked their lives to save him as he clung to a piece of wreckage after a half mile swim but he died as he was being taken to Staten Island Hospital. He had dived from the S. S. President Monroe at quarantine.

Weather Report

Light showers and cooler today and probably tomorrow. Moderate southwest winds.

MASSACHUSETTS, MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE, VERMONT, RHODE ISLAND, CONNECTICUT

Light showers and cooler Wednesday and probably Thursday.

WINDS

Eastport to Sandy Hook: Fresh southwest winds over south portion, moderate to fresh southwest shifting to northwest over north portion and mostly overcast weather today, possibly light showers this afternoon.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate south or southwest winds, mostly overcast weather today, probably light showers this afternoon.

CONDITIONS

The disturbance over the middle West is now moving very slowly eastward and pressure remains relatively low over Cuba the Bahamas and southern Florida. Another disturbance has developed over the St. Lawrence valley and pressure remains low southeastward over the ocean.

Pressure is low and falling from central Alaska southeastward to Alberta, thence southward to Arizona and southern California. High pressure prevails over the north Pacific states, British Columbia and southeastern Alaska and from Hudson Bay and Manitoba south southwestward to eastern Colorado. Pressure remains relatively high from the Carolinas eastward beyond Bermuda.

Showers have occurred in the Great Central valleys, the southern lake region, and portions of the plains and the Gulf states. The temperature has risen in the Atlantic states, the Rocky Mountain region and the plains, while it has fallen in the Pacific states, the northern plateau region, Quebec, Ontario, and northern Michigan.

The disturbance now over the middle West will move slowly eastward and will be attended by showers in most sections today and probably tomorrow. The temperature will be somewhat lower in the north Atlantic states, the upper Ohio valley and the interior of the middle Atlantic states today and the north Atlantic states tomorrow.

BORROW without endorsers through this Special Plan

Last year we loaned $270,000 to Boston people on no other security than their individual names. It is a most attractive plan. You don't ask friends to sign anything. You don't put up collateral. Costs are low. Each loan carries life insurance on unpaid balance at no extra cost.

If this plan does not fit your circumstances, we can surely arrange one that does, with repayments from 6 to 20 months.

The Governor Wisely Aids Aviation

"IF MASSACHUSETTS is to take her rightful place in world aviation, we must adopt a definite program and carry it out."

That was Governor Hurley's message to the Legislature Monday.

It was more than a message. It was a warning—a warning so important to the future of this State that neither legislator nor private citizen can afford to ignore it.

Facing the situation, seeing it as it exists and expressing a commendable determination to improve it, the Governor stated:

"If Massachusetts is to play any prominent part in the future of aviation, it is imperative that we make an immediate and careful study of all phases of aviation.

"Proper planning and location of airports are of vital importance to our future prosperity.

"There is only one airport, Boston's, that can safely accommodate the operation of today's transport plane.

"This leaves the large industrial centers—Springfield, Worcester, Fall River, Lowell and Lawrence—WITHOUT AVAILABLE SERVICE.

"Also, emergency fields must be built throughout the State, particularly in the North Adams area."

THE Governor is right; it IS imperative that we make an immediate and careful study of all phases of aviation.

Boston, nearest American city to Europe, can be the United States terminal for the North Atlantic air routes. And it will be our own fault if planes go to New York or elsewhere, carrying millions of dollars annually with them.

Without delay, the Legislature should authorize the commission which Mr. Hurley requests.

The commission should work with the Advisory Board of Aeronautics, ably headed by Paul S. Bauer; with the Federal Board of Air Commerce and with experienced fliers and public-spirited citizens.

MASSACHUSETTS, whose air prowess was once so outstanding that even the Government at Washington borrowed our legislation, cannot lose the prosperity that aviation now offers.

It is clearly our duty to improve all of our airports and to plan for more, many more.

A Progressive Bill

MASSACHUSETTS should raise the age limit for compulsory school attendance from fourteen to sixteen years.

Justice and proper consideration for the boys and girls who will be the men and women of tomorrow argue strongly for the State Federation of Labor petition requesting this progressive legislation.

Consequently the bill now before the Legislature should become law with no further delay.

Though no substitute for the defeated Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution, the changing of the compulsory school attendance age is a step forward.

It is generally known that the more reputable industries will not employ children; that only the less reputable, usually sweatshops, do that.

Therefore, the child who leaves school at fourteen either receives the least desirable of jobs or is compelled to spend two years or more in idleness.

In this highly competitive era with jobs only for those who are best prepared, no boy or girl can have too much education. Certainly what he obtains between his sixth and sixteenth year is no more than adequate.

Massachusetts has been foremost among the forty-eight States in the adoption of progressive legislation. We cannot permit ourselves to lag at this time when the whole country is moving ahead.

Relatives On Payrolls

IN SPITE of public disapproval, the practice of nepotism by members of Congress continues with little evidence of abatement.

Analysis of the official payrolls shows that a large number of Congressmen are maintaining relatives at public expense.

Few evils are so deeply rooted in government as the custom of burdening the public treasury with the relatives of office-holders.

With such a system, tests of competence are impossible. It does not permit the selection of workers on the basis of merit, but imposes personal influence as the sole requirement for employment.

The nation's work should be done by those best qualified to do it. Nepotism is an abuse of public trust, and encourages misuse of public money.

The stamp of popular disapproval has long been on the practice, and its continuance in Congress is defiance as well as betrayal of the public interest.

War on Red Films

THE list of patriotic organizations, all national in character, participating in the campaign against subversive motion pictures is inspirational.

The American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Order of Elks, the Legion of Valor, the Knights of Columbus and others are giving national force to the movement to STOP RED FILMS.

These organizations are representative of the finest principles of Americanism.

The movement is wisely centered in Los Angeles, the heart of the motion picture world.

To support the work of these patriots is the duty of all the citizens. For the nation may have confidence that a campaign of loyalty in such hands cannot be denied attainment of its objective.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, May 5—Theatrical history has nothing to compare to the shuffle that sent Benny Fields to a top position and his wife and long-time team-mate Blossom Seeley, into comparative eclipse. For years Miss Seeley was the headliner of their standard vaudeville act.

O. O. McIntyre

On the programs her name in thick type was followed by a small agate line, "With Benny Fields." Singing in the same fashion he had employed for almost a decade and at a time both were jobless and almost broke, Fields suddenly became a rousing sensation.

He was the original crooner who was left at the post by the younger Vallees and Crosbys and then galloped under the wire away out front. Engagements were offered in cabarets, on the radio in Hollywood. His name studded the Broadway lights in story book fashion.

To many artistic couples this might have meant domestic crack-up. But it didn't for them. Miss Seeley is always nearby, beaming with pride, when he sings. He in turn is showering her with jewels, fine furs and a villa on Long Island. They are rightfully very happy.

They have been missing George M. Cohan in several of his accustomed haunts of late. Many say the usual nectar of his life has turned a bit bitter. He still grieves for his old friend and companion on nights out, Steve Reardon, the former policeman and Celtic wit.

His teaming up again with his old partner, Sam Harris, and the flop of their first play were also disquieting. And he was emotionally upset by the long illness of his daughter, Georgette, and a tragic automobile accident in which his son figured.

Those who know declare he has grown unusually grave in his demeanor and spends much of his time walking alone in Central Park. They also hope it is a temporary touch of temperament, for Broadway and the theater need Cohan as never before.

In the words of praise he so often bestows on others: He's a great little guy.

It strikes non-radicals as a hopeful sign that most of the propaganda novels—variously identified as "working class," "revolutionary," "proletarian" and so forth, after being advertised in a big way, sell less than 5000 copies. While "Gone With the Wind," without a trace of Communism, and full of rousing patriotism, records more than a million.

Also, in spite of the fact that radical reviewers, and that includes many in the metropolitan area, either turned it down completely or gave it the faint praise that damns.

Some of these days the insidious history of radical propaganda books and their tieups with Communists masquerading as honest critics is going to reach the open. And when it does it is going to shock a lot of people in Washington as well as the great American reading public.

Around the airports they will tell you that just a litle flying often makes one inarticulate and that a seasoned aviator is about the most silent of human beings. Even the debonaire Harry Richman began to slow up with his accustomed wise cracking after his flight to Europe. Of course, everybody knows Lindbergh's taciturnity. As well as that of Amelia Earhart and Howard Hughes.

Then the moot question of waiters wearing glasses. A waiter in spectacles is almost an oddity. Of course, many who serve have glasses but do not wear them on duty. In many restaurants, like old Delmonico's, glasses for waiters are taboo. Several reasons are advanced. Some say it makes them look too haughty with the customers and that many will avoid them.

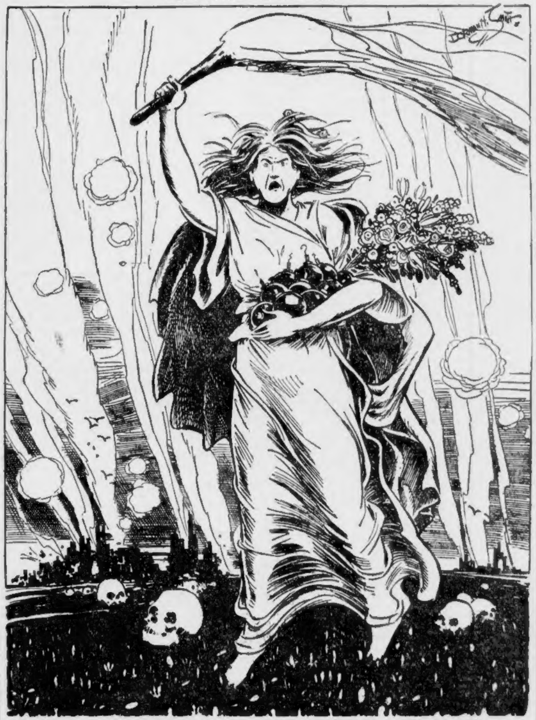
On the other hand, it is a psychological fact that few restaurant patrons ever look into a waiter's face. Often they have to inquire, in demanding the check, which waiter is serving them.

The metamosphosis of Eddy Duchin is among the interesting phenomena of the town. A few years ago he was a gangling, raw-boned dance orchsetra pianist who seemed mostly knuckles and teeth against the background of an enormous blush. Today he is the baton wielders' No. 1 It Man, a suave, and graceful figure who wears evening clothes like a Menjou, knows how to murmur graceful compliments and can fill the most aristocratic grills with beautiful ladies who just want to sit and admire.

A polite character in our town prefaces the answer to every question with a "Yes sir." The other day he faced the mayor for tarrying too long at the flowing bowl and was fined $1 and costs. When asked by His Honor if he had the amount he replied: "Yes sir, I have not."

Spring Comes to Spain

Copyright, 1937, by American Newspapers, Inc.



War's continued desolation makes all seasons alike in Spain.

Spring, which brings revival of the miracles of Nature in peaceful lands, means only greater destruction in Spain.

Cities are crumbling shambles of the dead.

The only growing things are mounting hatreds and class passions of a nation obsessed with killing.

Spring comes to Spain, as do all other seasons in war time, as the harbinger of Death, Destruction and Despair.

The hope of the entire civilized world is that the intelligence of men and nations will prevent the spread of this hopeless conflict beyond war-stricken Spain.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

On the eve of the Coronation, President DeValera of the Irish Free State lays a constitution before the people of Ireland (henceforth to be known as "Eire") which aims to make of the Emerald Isle a "free and independent republic," with or without the consent of England.

The constitution of DeValera is somewhat different from any constitution that is in working order today in the world. It is a mixture of democracy and Fascism, with, however, religious liberty and property rights left intact.

The shades of those two brilliant and romantic martyrs to Ireland's struggle for freedom, Wolfe Tone and Robert Emmet, are today doubtless standing behind DeValera with triumphant looks on their faces.

Tone commited suicide the day before he was to be hanged in 1798 and Emmet was executed in 1803.

DeValera's constitution must, however, first be adopted by the Irish Parliament. Then it goes before the people for a vote. That will be a campaign that will be full of "live" news, for the Irisman takes his politics with tremendous seriousness.

Brigadier-General Samuel E. Tillman, who is 90 and absurdly labelled "retired" on the Army rolls, says that he ascribes his good health to the wearing of suspenders all his life.

He condemns the belt as injuripedes circulation and gives one pedes circulation and goves one a generally baggy-trousers look.

Only an ingenious American could have discovered the fountain of youth in the straps that hold up his pants.

Where there is no competition there is no quality. 'There is nothing but mass production STANDARDIZED RUBBISH.

Andre Gide, famous French writer, who became an ardent sovieteer 10 years ago, now writes a book after a trip to Russia, in which he says:

"Quality? Why trouble about it since there is no competition?"

There can be no quality in production when there is no rivalry and individual competition.

The proof of the Communist pudding is in the tasting, and Andre Gide finds it tasteless.

"Peace on earth" cannot be brought about by essays, no matter how well written.

The New History Society has received 1300 essays in its competition on how to prevent wars.

Many of the writers are under the illusion that nations will keep the peace by READING ABOUT the blessings of peace.

War will not cease until it is rooted out of the human heart. Not paper and ink, but WILL is the remedy.

A cat may laugh at a king, so it is said, but a German may not laugh out of place at a Nazi-made film, according to the government-inspired press of Germany.

The degree of freedom that a people possesses can be guarded almost exactly by what the rulers PERMIT the people to laugh at.

America is by this standard the freest country in the world, for where else will a President, his cabinet and the Supreme Court be found at an entertainment that puts on a performance in which they are "spoofed" to the limit and wherein the "digs" are hugely enjoyed by those who are "dug."

This is done at the dinners of the Gridiron Club, in Washington, each year.

When there is FREE LAUGHTER the dictator is still far away.

You will note, if you are in business, that creditors are always somewhat touchy about the word "debt."

Asked in the House of Commons whether he had read the "rude" comments of the newspapers of America on the English debt to us, Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replied:

"I NEVER READ RUDE COMMENTS."

He said this on the very day that the new neutrality measure went to the President for his signature, with the "rude" provision AGAINST FLOTATION IN THE UNITED STATES OF BELLIGERENT LOANS OR LONGTIME COMMERCIAL CREDITS.

This is MANDATORY—which is "rude," no doubt, from Mr. Chamberlain's standpoint, but is backed up by the overwhelming sentiment of our people.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Bayonne, N. J., a city of 91,000 population, gives traffic experts all over the United States something to think about. Do traffic lights, installed to promote safe driving, actually encourage reckless driving? According to Chief of Police O'Neill of Bayonne, the answer is "yes," so far as his city is concerned. Bayonne got rid of its traffic lights. And during the first three months of 1937 it enjoyed the distinction of being the LARGEST CITY IN THE NATION WITHOUT A TRAFFIC DEATH.

In blaming traffic lights for many "accidents," Chief O'Neill said:

"We found reckless driving to be the major cause of traffic deaths and we decided that red lights just had a bad effect on motorists. The motorist sees a light ahead and he steps on the gas to get past it."

Despite the experience at Bayonne, it is difficult to see how large cities could move their traffic without traffic lights of some kind. The number of traffic officers required would put an unbearable financial burden upon the taxpayers. An analysis of traffic records undoubtedly will show more deaths have occurred at places where there are no signal lights than at places where lights have been installed.

There is no doubt that CARELESSNESS is the major cause of traffic killings. And motorists have no monopoly on carelessness. There are careless walkers as well as careless drivers.

The most important lesson from Bayonne's PERFECT TRAFFIC RECORD is that AUTOMOBILE KILLINGS CAN BE AVOIDED. If a city of 91,000 population can go three months without a traffic fatality, smaller cities certainly can do as well and larger cities undoubtedly can cut down their death toll. It is all a matter of promoting carefulness. Rigid enforcement of traffic laws will help everywhere to make motorists and pedestrians more careful. The 26 per cent increase in the national traffic death toll the first quarter of his year over the same period of 1936 is a disgrace to people who claim to be civilized.

A Bachelor Monarch

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Once more the cables bring attention to the bachelorhood of the King of Albania and his desire to take a wife. At this writing, the main qualification of the lady who would be queen is that she have $5,000,000, which sort of puts the question up to an American heiress. Incidentally, the King has four sisters in the marriage market.

Edwin C. Hill

Last December it appeared that King Zog was to marry the beautiful, 19-year-old Countess Johanna von Mikes, daughter of a Hungarian family. She went to Tirana and talked it over with the monarch. An official denial of the engagement was later announced, and this denial was prompted by the failure of the parties to agree on religious matters and the question of residence.

The King asked the Countess to give up Roman Catholicism for Mohammedanism and also that she agree to spend nine months of the year in Albania. She took an airplane back to Budapest.

SHREWD LEADER

The Albanian minister to the United States was somewhat skeptical of this version of the story. He said that he doubted it largely on the point of religious differences, which he said could not prevail under the circumstances related.

"This idea of getting a wife for King Zog," he went on, "seems to worry American journalists more than the King himself. He loves aloofness and dislikes restrictions and conventions that would interfere with his serious work for the benefit of the state.

"Moreover, his civil list is larger than that of the President of the United States and he has a private income that, even judged from American standards, is not negligible. So there is little that could induce him to give up his single blessedness.

"On the other hand, Albanian patriots live constantly in the fear that, as there is no heir to the throne, should anything happen to the King a period of dangerous civil strife may break out. For this reason, they keep annoying him with prayers to get married."

Sometimes they do more than pray. A year and a half ago Albania had a rebellion which was put down quickly because the police and army had telephones and the rebels did not. The purpose of this revolt was said to be the idea of compelling Zog to take as his queen one Fatima, the daughter of a Mohammedan chieftain.

At the age of 41, King Zog of Albania is as slick in politics as his silky, blond moustache. Wars and rebellions are old stuff to him, since he has been engaged in them since has was 18 years old. Attempts have been made on his life, and for six months of 1924 he was an exile from his country while Bishop Fan Noli, educated at Harvard, attempted to set up a democratic regime.

Zog made hay in Belgrade while the bishop was attempting to make constitutional government. When he was ready, Zog appeared at the border with an army made up largely of Russian mercenaries. They proceeded to introduce the machine gun into the beautiful country of mountains and rocks.

HIS THREE LOVES

The Albanians had never met up with these contraptions, and, while, man for man and rifle for rifle, he can hold his own with the best, these modern versions of the Gatling were a little too much for him. Zog got his throne back and paid off his debts to the states which had furnished him the men and the money. Since then Albania has been more or less tranquil.

Zog smokes one cigarette after another, buys one fine uniform after another, speaks softly and hits hard. He is mentally wide awake and puts in 14 hours a day at his job. Post Wheeler, former American minister to Albania, has given us this picture of him:

"I visualize a young man, natty and assured, with direct and friendly eyes, sitting in the study of a simple bungalow on the Adriatic beach talking with me of his plans.

"A man of three great loves—his country, his mother and his horse. His mother died suddenly, an irremediable loss to him. His horse, a splendid pure-blooded Arab stallion, 30 years old, which he has ridden in every battle in many campaigns, enjoys a luxurious leisure at the present time."

Zog will have his throne as long as he can hold it. Europe insists that Albania shall stand as an independent country across the Adriatic from Italy.

The peace of the continent could not afford its seizure by another power. Also, Zog and his mountaineers would make it pretty hot for any power that tried to take their country.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"Women the pure minded sex" —I wonder!

"You'd wonder, too, if you ran this column. Hundreds of letters per day — a large share of them from frantic females whose common torch song is MAN. Dynamite letters, loaded with suspicion, resentment, envy, jealousy, hate. You read and read.

Elsie Robinson

Presently you find yourself appalled at the amount of ignorant, malicious and downright nasty nonsense which seemingly "nice" women will store within their skulls.

I've talked with thousands of women who were dainty as flowers in their personal grooming, cultured and refined in their taste—yet they honestly believed and discussed theories about the human male which would make a well-bred garbage barrel blush!

We're a great gang, we modern emancipated females—smart, adaptable, progressive in nearly every respect. But when it comes to love, we're still huddled in the jungle, mixing toad whiskers and tonsils into magic potions to get our Man—or bump him off.

And, though I hate to admit it, I fear that women writers are partly responsible for this state of affairs. They're smart women—these writers who do articles about love and marraige in newspapers and magazines. And they're plenty experienced, for they were born and bred in an equal suffrage, coeducation era,

SHIRKING THE DUTY

Yet how do they handle these hysterical raves from the sobbing and sizzling sisterhood? Do they tell them to snap out of it and act their age? Do they suggest that these Mad Mamas may be largely to blame for their own misery, because of their selfishness, silliness and slovenliness? Do they wage intelligent war against senseless jealously and savage suspicion?

They do NOT! To the contrary, they fervently agree that Man is a "predatory prowler," naturally promiscuous, conceited and cruel—not to be trusted around the corner! All men, they warn, are bound to have affairs sooner or later, and good women must just sit and suffer. For Man is only an overgrown little boy whose vanity cannot resist the inevitable advances of the Office Home Wrecker.

So a wise woman, they insist, must learn to manage men, and start early. Never wholly trust any man, no matter how spotless his record may seem. Never let him know how much you love him. Keep him guessing and always be prepared for the worst, for it's bound to come.

Such is the poisonous trash ladled out in our best publications by scores of intelligent, refined women writers, and it's gobbled up avidly by millions of women readers. Then we're surprised when some Hysterical Hattie proceeds to liquidate her perfectly innocent husband on the ground that "she thought he was maybe getting interested in another woman."

But aren't there philandering husbands? Of course there are—just as there are philandering wives. And there are fine, clean, loyal and loving men—just as there are fine, clean, loyal and loving women. Taking both male and female, by and large, a husband is no greater matrimonial risk than a wife.

THE RIGHT VIEW

And there are worse menaces to the home than even a philandering husband. Philandering is not the only form of "unfaithfulness," nor is it the most vicious. A woman may be perfectly chaste, yet violate her marriage vows by vile thoughts, vicious words and malicious practices.

A WAGGING TONGUE CAN WRECK A MARRIAGE AS SURELY AS A ROVING EYE. THE HUSBAND WHO COMPLAINS TO HIS SECRETARY IS NO WORSE THAN THE WIFE WHO SPILLS HER FILTHY SUSPICIONS TO HER NEIGHBOR.

If the average unhappy wife would spend a third of the time doing a job on herself which she spends suspecting her husband the divorce courts would speedily go out of business.

That's the decent truth about men, women and marriage. All the rest is—nasty nonsense.
